McAdoo Developing Plan of Enforcement of New Tariff Act.

PREDICT IT BIG AID TO BUSINESS

Bryan Warmly Commends Law Signed by Wilson Friday Evening.

Washington, Oct. 4.—With the democratic tariff law consummated, signed by President Wilson at 9:10 o'clock last evening, activity today was transferred from the halls of congress to the treasury department, where Secretary McAdoo and Assistant Secretary Hamlin began the development of a plan of enforcement. Treasury officials declare that the new act was the lowest tariff law in the history of the country with the possible exception of the Walker tariff of 1846 and its amendatory tariff of 1857.

With President Wilson and the congressional framers of the law, they declared it was a "competitive tariff," and freely expressed the conviction that business would be invigorated and sustained through its operation. Officials were equally confident that it would afford the government ample revenue.

Will Mean a Loss.

It is roughly estimated that $100,000,000 worth of merchandise, held in bond, soon will be withdrawn and payment of duty made under the new law. Compared with the Payne-Aldrich act, this will mean a loss of $10,000,000 to the government. Treasury officials maintained that these withdrawals would have no perceptible effect upon the business of the country.

General regulations will be issued within a few days covering the tariff as a whole and these will be followed by specific rules regarding each of the intricate schedules. The most difficult administrative feature of the new act is the income tax provision.

Income Tax Most Difficult.

This entirely new venture will require the work of experts to draft a workable plan that will insure the government receiving its lawful dues from every taxable citizen. William H. Osborn, commissioner of internal revenue, today began the task of formulating as simple a plan as possible. While no official announcement has been made, it is believed that L. F. Speer, of Bangor, Pa., at present chief of the corporation tax division of the treasury department, will be appointed deputy commissioner of internal revenue in immediate charge of the income tax.

MANY HURT AS CARS COLLIDE

Early Morning Crash in Fog at Columbus, O., Has Fatal Results.

IMPACT IS TERRIFIC

Columbus, O., Oct. 4.—In a heavy fog two interurban cars of the Columbus Railway and Light company collided head-on just north of this city early today, seriously injured four men, two probably fatally. The cars met on a single track and the impact caused them to telescope. A score or more passengers were more or less injured.

Morgan C. Davis, of Columbus, one of the injured, died shortly after reaching a hospital. Both of his legs were severed and he was otherwise injured.

Those seriously injured, all of Columbus, were: Jacob Hess, 50, internally; Frank Olick, internally; Kenna Loudenmilk, probably internally injured, badly cut and bruised; Joseph Scott, 67, left arm broken; William Hutton, 25, head cut; E. Schuller, both legs broken; Fred Eberhard, leg fractured.

SEEK GUNMAN AS CHILD'S SLAYER

Battered Body of Little Girl Lies in Morgue in New York.

BLOW ON HEAD KILLS

New York, Oct. 4.—The battered body of a fair haired little girl—killed by a blow on the head—lay in the Harlem morgue today while the police of the greater city sought Joseph Dehuma, a nortorious Italian gunman, as her slayer.

The child's body was brought to the morgue in a macaroni box last night by Ralph Pasqua, an undertaker, who told a terrified tale of having been coerced at a pistol's point to go to the gunman's flat and remove the body. In the flat he saw a blonde woman, weeping. When detectives reached the flat later she was gone and with her the gunman.

The theory was advanced that the little girl had been kidnapped and was being held for ransom. There is no police record, however, of a child of that description being missing.

The undertaker was held today, pending further investigation of the matter. He says the gunman told him that he had hit the child as she begged for water at night.

SAILS AWAY ON HIS LONG TRIP

Colonel Roosevelt Heads Expedition to South America.

EX-PRESIDENT IS GIVEN A SEND-OFF

Big Party Will Long Be Out of Touch With All Civilization.

New York, Oct. 4.—Theodore Roosevelt set out today for the second time since he left the white house, upon a long journey into the southern hemisphere. The sailing of the steamship Vandyck, upon which he had booked passage for South America, was timed for 4 o'clock, but the former president and members of his party were astir early with final preparations for embarking, and many of the progressive party leaders, who tendered him a farewell dinner at a New York theater last night ,arranged to be on hand to give him a good send-off.

Like his East African trip, the South American journey is undertaken with the colonel proposing to make it one of many aspects. His chief interest probably lies in the proposed penetration of the interior of Brazil with a party of fellow naturalists under the auspices of the American Museum of

SENT WIRELESS CALL

Seattle, Wash., Oct. 4.—All passengers of the Pacific Coast Steamship company's steamer Spokane, are reported safe today on board the steamer La Touche, of the same line, which took them off the Spokane when the vessel went ashore last night, near Cape Lazo, 100 miles north of Victoria, B. C.

Details of what happened after the wireless call "sinking fast," went out from the Spokane will be known when the La Touche, a freighter, reaches port here today. Another of the company's season, the steamer State of California wrecked vessel.

The wrecked vessel was bound here from Skagway, Alaska. She lies close to the point where she was beached in 1911 after striking a rock in Seymour Narrows. She is the second of the company's vessels to get into trouble this season, the steamer state of California having struck an uncharted rock in Gambier bay, Aug. 17, and sunk, carrying down thirty-seven passengers and seven members of the crew.

Later the Pacific Coast Steamship company received the following wireless from the purser of the Spokane.

THAW'S LAWYERS STILL FIGHTING

File Telegrams from 33 Governors in Supplementary Briefs.

FIND NO PRECEDENT

Concord, N. H., Oct. 4.—Suplementary briefs opposing the extradition of Harry K. Thaw were filed with Gov. Felker today. With the briefs were submitted telegrams from the governors of thirty-three states, all of whom said that ther had no knowledge of a request ever having been made in their states for the extradition of a lunatic.

The message from Wm. H. Painter, acting governor of Missouri, is typical. He said:

"Executive department of this state has no knowledge of record of extradition sought or honored for escaped lunatic or insane person charged with crime where person sought had been adjudged insane."

Thaw's attorneys set up that the requisition papers show no indictment against their client; that on the date of the alleged conspiracy to escape from the insane asylum at Matteawan, N. Y., he was insane and so legally incapable of committing a crime, and that on all the evidence it should be determined that the real purpose of New York state is to obtain the return of Thaw to Matteawan.

OYSTERS SHORT IN CANS.

Food Inspection Bureau Finds Weight is Too Light.

Washington, Oct. 4.—Shortage of from ten to fifteen per cent. of drained oyster meat, was discovered by the national board of food and drug inspection in its examination of samples of oysters put up during the season of 1912-1913. This shortage was found, says an official statement, in cans of all sizes except packing select and extra select oysters. The officials express the opinion that this was not intentional, but rather to the fact that the packers made insufficient allowance for loss of weight of oysters through processing. All oyster canners from Maryland to Louisiana, however, have been notified what amount of oyster meat various sized cans must contain.

ESCAPES HIS TOMB AT LAST

LITTLE THE WORSE FOR GRIM ORDEAL

Says He Feels "Bully," and It Was Nothing to Make a Fuss About.

Centralia, Pa., Oct. 4.—Thomas Toshesky, prisoner since Friday of last week in an abandoned chamber of the Continental mine of the Lehigh Valley Coal company, walked into the open air a free and comparatively well man at 22 minutes before 8 o'clock this morning. He was taken to his home in Centralia, three miles away from his underground prison, and at once put to bed apparently none the worse for his remarkable experience. It was 7:15 o'clock when the last barrier of coal was driven away and Toshesky crawled through the opening from his prison chamber into the tunnel which had been steadily driven toward him by eager, willing rescuers. Seven minutes later the first intimation was given to the outside world that the big task was completed and the prisoner was free. This was when a miner crawled to the mouth of the tunnel and called at the top of the pit for blankets and hot water to be sent down.

Heralded Hero's Approach.

The work of getting the man ready for his exit occupied the next few minutes and at 7:38 o'clock, a file of men emerging from the heading heralded the approach of the hero of the occasion. Toshesky came from the hole with a gray blanket wrapped about his shoulders. Back of him was a miner with hands upraised ready to assist if he should be needed but Toshesky walked with astonishing agility considering his experience.

When he stepped on to the wooden platform just outside the mouth of the narrow tunnel and was first able to stand upright he paused for an instant and looked upward as if in greeting to the world or scanning the steep and muddy zig zag path which led to the opening of the mine breach. His min-

GETS QUORUM BY NARROW MARGIN

Senate Passes Urgent Deficiency Bill Abolishing Commerce Court

AFTER A FILIBUSTER

Washington, Oct. 4.—Securing the attendance of a voting quorum by a narrow margin the senate today passed the urgent deficiency appropriation bill carrying the house provision abolishing the commerce court. An amendment retaining the five commerce court judges on the circuit court bench until they resign or retire was added to the provision, however, following a filibuster by supporters of the court.

The bill also carried, as finally passed an amendment proposed by the senate appropriations committee exempting deputy United States marshals and deputy internal revenue collectors from the classified civil service. This provision was strongly opposed by the senate republicans. About $5,000,000 of appropriations are carried by the bill, including $100,000 for the use of the state department in moving Americans out of Mexico.

Speaker Clark left Washington today for a short trip to Kentucky, Tennessee and West Virginia. He will speak Sunday at Louisville, visit the conservation exposition at Knoxville Monday and speak on Wednesday at Wheeling. Representative Sherley, of Kentucky, has been designated to act as speaker pro tem on Tuesday.

BARNETT SELLS 'BUS BARN SITE

S. E. Mulholland, of Indiana Lighting Company, Buys Property.

THE PRICE WAS $80,000

Long pending negotiations for the sale of the old Barnett 'bus barn property, on East Wayne street, were brought to a close this morning when S. E. Mulholland, manager of the Indiana Lighting company, purchased the property form A. G. Barnett.

The property fronts 105 feet on Wayne street, immediately east of the White Fruit House property, now owned by Straus Bros., and is 150 feet in depth. The consideration was $80,000. This is one of the biggest down town real estate transfers in several months, and the deal is regarded in local business circles as one of vast importance. It is assumed that the Murdocks, of Lafayette, heads of the Indiana Lighting company, are interested in the investment, although it is announced this afternoon that the lighting company is not directly back of the deal.

When interviewed this afternoon Mr. Mulholland declared that the Fort Wayne Transfer company holds a lease on the property that does not expire for two and one-half years. He states that as soon as the new owners are able to assume possession of the property, numerous improvements will be made, adding that the deal was consummated on his part purely as an investment.

The property is especially adaptable for a hotel or a theater, being the largest piece of unimproved inside business property available today in Fort Wayne.

VAST THRONG CHEERS BUCK

BIG MASS MEETING AT ASSEMBLY ROOM

Hears Campaign Issues Discussed from the Non-Partisan Standpoint.

"I would rather he defeated and have you people with me than to be elected mayor of Fort Wayne by partisan politics, and ever after have a rope about my neck and be subject to the dictates of the party machines."

Thus spoke Charles H. Buck, the non-partisan candidate for mayor, in closing an address Friday night at the mass meeting held in the assembly room of the court house, and when Mr. Buck ceased his remarks the massive audience enthusiastically shouted its approval of him and his principles, showing that all that has been said against Mr. Buck, and all that has just been published against the non-partisan movement, has not nor will not cause the voters to change their sentiment. Mr. Buck was tendered an ovation that plainly demonstrated the enormous strength of the movement to divorce party politics from city government in Fort Wayne.

The meeting was one of the biggest and most enthusiastic campaign gatherings held in Fort Wayne this fall. The assembly room was filled to overflowing. Supporters of the movement crowded the corridors in the lobby of the building, and great crowds gathered about the windows outside the room, all eager to show their appreciation of the non-partisan cause. In spite of the fact that the speaking program continued until after 11 o'clock, scarcely a man left the room, and when the last speech had ended they remained in their seats and shouted for more.

Mr. Buck and Liquor-Selling.

During the course of the evening, denial was given the charge by the opposition, that Mr. Buck had at any time sold liquor without a license.

"Let them bring their affidavits," said Albert E. Thomas in the opening address of the evening. "If Mr. Buck is guilty of running a blind tiger as is charged, so are these other grocerymen in Fort Wayne who for years sold liquor in their grocery stores to their grocery trade. If that means he is guilty he therefore, stands on a par with other

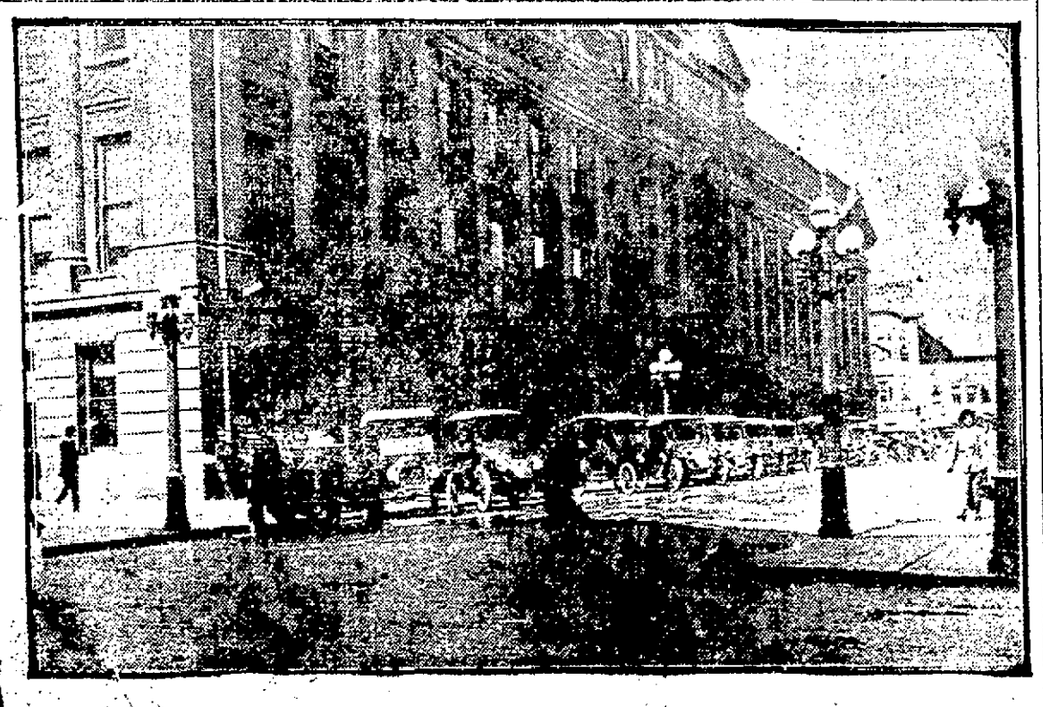
FORT WAYNE'S NEW SYSTEM OF PARKING AUTOMOBILES IS PUT INTO PRACTICE ON THE COURT STREET SIDE OF THE COURT HOUSE.



"HONEST BILLS" AND "WORKINGMAN'S FRIEND" FOOL NO WORKINGMEN TODAY

(By the Non-Partisan City Central Committee.)

To the Voters of the City of Fort Wayne:

The men who make up the army of toilers in Fort Wayne are used to the claptrap of political campaigns that this party or that candidate is the "workingman's friend." They day when stale chaff of that sort could catch intelligent workingmen at the polls long since passed. Workingmen have come to understand that anything they can get worth having from candidates must come through the government that is given them. Workingmen of Fort Wayne have plenty of wit to know that "Honest Bills" and "friends of the workingman" are worth what they can do and not what the fulsomeness of hired organs and job-hungry orators say they are worth. The government of this city is not a party affair. It is a great big institution with vast business to perform, and that business touches the daily life of every man, woman and child in the community.

The workingmen of Fort Wayne are home-owneds and men of families. They have great and permanent interest in the city and a vital concern in the manner of its government. They have nothing at stake on parties. They have everything at stake on municipal officials. They have nothing to gain by any party's victory. They have everything to gain or lose by the public policies of the government under which they must live. The spoils of a partisan victory will be distributed to a very few men. The consequences of bad government or the benefits of good government will touch everybody. What the workingmen of Fort Wayne have to decide is whether they will have a government of spoils or a government of efficiency. They are presented the choice between a spoils organization and a non-partisan organization—between a man whose chief known business is the chasing of office and a man who has become a candidate because thousands of his fellow citizens besought him to do so.

PERMISSION TO REGISTER ASKED

THE MUNICIPAL NEWS

Voters in recently annexed territory that is not included in precinct boundaries, will probably be enabled to go to the registration places Monday and register. Steps are likely to be taken today to instruct the officials in the precincts to which the several affected parts of the city should belong to let voters do this pending further action by the city council.

It is believed that at another meeting of the council there can be secured a consideration of the resolution, defeated at last night's special meeting, by which it was proposed to extend the boundaries of precinct "A," the first, fifteenth, sixteenth and twenty-third precincts so as to include recently annexed territory.

If the council still refuses to take the desired action proceedings to mandate the council to do this are likely to be started in the courts.

In a short session last night the council voted down the resolution. The fear was general that if the proposed action should be declared invalid it might affect the results of the election and throw the result of the November municipal balloting in to the courts for long, costly and embittered litigation.

Good lawyers assert that the council not only has full power to take the action necessary to permit citizens of the new territory to vote, but that it is the council's duty to do this.

TO EXTEND BEAVER AVENUE.

Board of Works Revives Old Matter by Request of Property Owners.

The board of works today decided to bring up and adopt a declaratory resolution to extend Beaver avenue north from Home avenue to the place where Broadway widens at Savilla avenue. Such a resolution was passed March 12, 1912, and it provided for a small trangular park where Broadway and Beaver avenue extended would be confluent. The park board believed that it could find means to considerably enlarge that proposed park and asked that the whole matter be turned over to that body. The board rescinded its resolution and the park board took up the proposed improvement, but found that the cost of condemning the land for a park would be excessive and the propect has since lain in abeyance. Lately Fred Buschman took out a permit to erect a residence on a part of the property needed for the Beaver avenue extension and property owners on Beaver avenue, from Home avenue south to the city limits, and on Broadway, from Grace avenue south to Savilla avenue, realized that if the extension were to be made it must be now. The matter was again taken up with the board. The board will revoke the Buschman permit and condemn the land for the opening at once. The purpose to make a park at Broadway and Beaver has been definitely abandoned.

PROGRESS WITH PUBLIC WORK.

Grand and Harrison Street Jobs Are Nearing Completion.

The Moellering Construction company will probably today complete the laying of concrete on Old Grand and Harrison streets, in the vicinity of the Wabash elevation work and the brick will be put down next week. Immediately following this the work, grading and laying the sidewalks will begin and some of the owners of property fronting on Old Grand street will start to cutting down their lots to the sidewalk grade. New buildings will be erected there.

The Grace Construction company will finish the concrete work on Webster street, Jefferson to Baker, this evening and will complete the pavement on College street Tuesday. This will be the finishing touch to College street, subway, pavement and all.

While the work on the grade separation at Broadway and the Wabash railroad has been much interrupted by the rains of the past week, the total of progress has been good and the work is being hurried forward.

YOUNG MILLIONAIRE FREED AS GIRL'S CHARGE FALLS.

HERMAN OELRICHS.

New York, Oct. 4.—Herman Oelrichs, millionaire law student at Columbia university, was discharged in police court today when arraigned on the charge of stabbing Lucille Singleton, daughter of a Texas mine owner.

The case against young Oelrichs was dismissed at the request of Assistant District Attorney James O'Malley, to whom Miss Singleton confessed yesterday that there was no basis for her previous declaration that Oelrichs had stabbed her.

Miss Singleton was not in court today, as she is still confined to her room as the result of injuries sustained in the accident several nights ago to the automobile in which she was riding with Oelrichs. Her signed statement asserting that her injuries were caused by being thrown against the windshield was read to the court.

"Quit your kidding, said the megaphone man, but he began to wonder later if it were not true.

"You'll pardon me," he said to Mr. Tumulty presently with caution, "but haven't many folk told you how much you resemble Mr. Tumulty, the president's secretary?"

"Oh, yes," said the secretary, "lots of them have—but what did you say that building was?" and the guide breathed easy. On the return journey, Mr. Tumulty stopped at the white house where an astonished sight-seeing party saw him slip merrily up the steps.

A trip into Patagonia to visit an out of the way mission, and two crossing of the continent to Santiago de Chile and back to Buenos Ayres will be other features of his journey.

The Colonel's Party.

Those who prepared to embark with him today were Mrs. Roosevelt and Mrs. Margaret Roosevelt, who will make the round trip on the Vandyck; Anthony Fiala, the polar explorer, who has charge of the expedition's equipment; G. Father John Augustine Zahn, provincial of the Order of the Holy Cross, a former field companion of the colonel.

The naturalists will start into the interior shortly after their arrival in Brazil, to be joined by the colonel after he has finished his lectures, which will be in December. It will probably be April before the party returns to civilization.

Urges Progressives On.

In the course of his address last night, the former president declared that the progressives would enter undaunted as a national party on another national campaign, and that the progressives would never rest content until every single principle enunciated by the party is put into practical operation by the nation.

Gifford Pinchot and Albert J. Beveridge also spoke.

During the twenty-four hours ending at noon yesterday, it is learned the stork made twelve visits, bringing three sets of twins, eight boys in single lots and one girl. The average age of the mothers is only twenty-two years. The combined weight of their new off-spring is 144 pounds.

PUTTING LAW INTO EFFECT

Gets Many Congratulations.

President Wilson went to the golf links early today, according to his Saturday custom, and when he returned to the white house shortly before noon found a pile of telegrams congratulating him on the signing of the new tariff bill. The messages came from chambers of commerce as well as political organizations from various parts of the country. With the congratulations on the completion of the tariff came, in many cases, the sentiment "now for currency legislation." In this spirit the president took up the task of securing the accomplishment of the second big measure of his administration.

At the white house and executive quarters generally there is confidence that the currency bill, already passed by the house, will be passed by the senate and signed by the president before many weeks. The opinion prevails that if the work is not completed before the December session of congress begins it surely will be done by Jan. 1.

Bryan Issues Statement.

Secretary Bryan today received the new tariff law as the best tariff measure since the civil war and predicted the early passage of the currency bill. Mr. Bryan issued this statement:

"The tariff law that went into force last night is the best tariff measure since the war and all who have taken part in preparing and passing it are entitled to great credit. It is a better bill than we were able to pass twenty years ago, and I rejoice that political conditions are such as to make the present law possible.

"The Wilson bill was compelled to carry a burden that will not fall upon the present law and ought not to have fallen on that law. The Wilson law provided for an income tax which was held unconstitutional by a divided vote, the one majority having been secured by a change of opinion on the part of one judge between the two hearings of the case. The nullification of the income tax portion of the Wilson law reduced the government's income until it would not meet the expenses of the government and this compelled an increase of indebtedness that threw upon the bill an undeserved odium which, together with the fact that the senate deprived the bill of some of its best features, robbed the party of the benefit which would ordinarily have come to it from a reduction in import duties. Then, too, the bill went into operation at a time when financial conditions were bad and many attributed to the law the defects for which it was not at all responsible.

"I mentioned the law of nineteen years ago because it is the only thing since the war with which we can compare the present law. Both economic, as well as political conditions make it possible to do now what could not be done then. We have, too, at this time a united party, which is a great asset. The president and the democratic house and senate have been in full sympathy and have worked unitedly in the accomplishment of this important work. They share the honors together and the honors are sufficient to give distinction to all who have participated.

"October 3 marks an important epoch in the economic history of the generation and I am confident that it will not be long before the country will be able to celebrate a second triumph for the president, the party and the country when the new currency bill passes and receives the president's signature."

What Underwood Says.

People who expect to find American stores sellings goods at reduced prices today because the Underwood-Simmons tariff is now law, are going to be disappointed, in the opinion of Representative Underwood, one of its authors. It will be many months, Mr. Underwood believes, before the effect of the new tariff becomes apparent to the consumer.

"It is only competition, caused by the new law that is going to reduce prices," said Mr. Underwood today. "Goods that merchants now have in stock were bought under the old high tariff and until those goods are sold out the merchants will not accept the basis made by the new law. It will be several months before the effect of the new tariff on commodities is felt and in many cases it may be a year. Manufacturers who have large stocks of raw material will not make reductions until their stock bought under the high tariff has been used up. The effect on wool probably will not show until next spring; the full effect on sugar not for several years."

er's cap was on his head when he crawled through the opening of the tunnel and greeted his rescuers. His lamp was in place upon his cap and burning.

Toshesky wore the usual rough clothing and shoes of the miner. The most noticeable thing about him was a pallor which shown through the grime of his face contrasting strangely with the other blackened miners whose ruddy color showed even through the coat of dust.

Climbs Almost Unaided.

Toshesky climbed the path to the rim of the pit almost unaided. A stretcher had been taken to the foot and there were plenty of willing hands to carry him but he would have none of it. His whole attitude from the time of the rescue until he disappeared beneath the blankets in his own bed at home was one of semi-stolidity.

Toshesky was glad to get out of his prison but he acted as if it were an old story to him and nothing over which to make a fuss. Once before in his career as a miner he had been entombed for nearly 48 hours.

Half way up the pit Toshesky was stopped and posed for a photograph, together with Dr. H. C. Fortner, who had been in almost constant touch with him since communication was established Tuesday night and to whom is largely due to the good health of the man.

Wears Broad Smile.

Toshesky wore the broadest smile of any person in the vicinity when brought out. "Hello" he greeted everybody who spoke to him. His reply to questions as to how he felt was "bully."

Just before the end of the tunnel was wide enough to permit the passage of his body the miners engaged in the work were chatting with him. One asked what he was doing. "I get ready to move," he said. "This is no boarding house, no good bed, no spring, no nice boarding missus."

Inhabitants of the town turned out to see Toshesky as he was whirled along the streets. His wife and five children waited for him at the door of his home. He got out of the car and walked up the steps to his family, embracing them all in turn, and kissing the baby repeatedly.

Describes His Experience.

Describing his experience Toshesky said when he was closed in he thought he would be crushed to death as several thousand wagon loads of coal piled towards him from the bottom of the breast. In fact, two breasts of coal ran away. Continuing, Toshesky said, through an interpreter: "My dinner bucket and coat at the bottom of the breast were lost as the coal rushed. I had all my mine tools with me and my lamp was burning. I had a half quart of oil in a can by my side. Sizing up the situation I found I was entombed in a space seven by fifteen feet.

"I had been entombed twice before and rescuers soon got me out. I felt that they would again take care of me. From Friday until Tuesday I was without anything to eat or drink and on the last day my oil gave out. I was in darkness. It was a dismal period from then until the rescuers drove the bore hole through. After I got several drinks ...ggnog I felt like a new man."

COLLEGE ELEVENS GET INTO ACTION

importance. Elevens from these institutions have met annually for twelve years and the Hoosiers have been successful but once. That was in 1910. Although Chicago is again the favorite today Coach Sheldon, of Indiana, believes that his team has almost an equal chance to win. He says that he has evolved a defense which will stop the Maroon's forward passes and end runs.

Critics have pronounced both lines weak but the backfields strong. Coach Stagg asserted that if the Hoosiers gained ground constantly it would be through the lines. There is not a pound's difference in the average weight of the teams. The game today will follow the dedication of the new athletic field completed at a cost of $200,000. This is the last day the stadium will be known as Marshall Field. Hereafter it will be the Athletic field of the University of Chicago.

WABASH AT PURDUE.

Lafayette, Ind., Oct. 4.—Purdue university's football team will open its season here today with Wabash college and each of the old-time enemies are prepared for a hard fought game. Wabash has won regularly for five years, but this year the early practice has seemed to indicate Purdue's eleven were the stronger. Purdue will go into the game without Berns, a guard, who was injured recently in practice, but otherwise the men are in good condition. Wabash brought twenty-two players in its squad and expects to use many substitutes.

OHIO NORTHERN-NOTRE DAME.

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 4.—With many of last year's players in the line-up Notre Dame university this afternoon meets Ohio Northern for the season's first game. Notre Dame is awaiting the outcome of the game to judge the fitness of the eleven, though both players and supporters declare the team to be one of the best the institution has had in years. Drop kicking is expected to be used a great deal by the local eleven as much attention has been given this work in practice.

This became known when letters of administration were taken out by his sister, who was bonded for $30,000, said to be the value of Calder's estate.

Calder was a bachelor, 66 years old, and became a member of the fire department when he was 21 years old. His pay was gradually increased from $700 a year to $1,150 a year. He never varied from his original expense of $500 a year and the balance of his pay he put in bank.

INVENTS DEVICE TO CHECK SUICIDE

Professor Finds Artificial Kidney Poison to Be Defective

IN HIS EXPERIMENTS

Baltimore, Md., Oct. 4.—Professor W. W. Abel, head of the department of pharmacology of the Johns Hopkins university, has perfected what he calls an artificial kidney, by means of which he hopes to check suicide.

The device makes it possible, he declares, to determine whether persons thought to be suffering from the effects of poisons are really under the influence of drugs, and to be able to discover almost immediately the poison they have taken.

The contrivance consists of a series of coils and tubes which are submerged in saline solution and its action is said to be the same as that of the kidney.

In making the test for poison it is necessary to have the blood stream flow through the tubes. This is done by connecting the tubes with the jugular vein and the carotid artery. The blood passes through the tubes, which are then immersed in a pan containing a warm solution. By means of a porous substance connecting the glass tubes the foreign and poisonous substances in the blood filter through into the saline solution. The solution being of the same temperature and consistency as the lymph in the blood, none of the natural ingredients which make up the blood are taken up by the solution of salt.

After allowing the blood to flow through the tubes for a given time a specimen of the saline solution is taken and then it is but a simple matter of chemical analysis to find what poison or foreign substance is present in the system of the patient.

JACK DUNCAN.

Oakland, Cal., Oct. 4.—Nine-year-old Jack Duncan sat perusing a large official looking envelope bearing the immense imperial seal of Germany that the postman had just brought him. He was puzzled.

In looking through some very old copies of the London Illustrated News a short time before, Jack discovered some very excellent woodcuts of Kaiser Wilhelm's father, made at the time of his wedding. He cut them out and sent them to the kaiser for his scrap book.

The kaiser admired the democratic spirit and kindheartedness of the boy and took enough of his official time to write him a letter:

"I found great pleasure," the letter run, "in looking at the pictures of my father that you sent me, and was pleased to think that one so young and so far

CANNOT PRACTICE IN STATE COURTS

Lawyer Thomas G. Moorhead is Suspended from the Local Bar.

NEWS OF THE COURTS

Thomas G. Moorhead was suspended from the Allen county bar this afternoon in proceedings that were had in the superior court. He surrendered his certificate and is now barred from practice in the state courts in any part of Indiana. He had been admitted to the bar in the superior court.

The ground upon which the suspension was made was that Moorhead had made misrepresentations to the court in obtaining his certificate of admission. The committee appointed by the circuit court Thursday to investigate and prepare and prosecute charges that he was unit to practice law in the courts of Indiana made no presentment of any sensational charges, confining its report to the statement that he had been found unfit to practice law in Indiana courts. Moorhead was represented by attorney, but made no contest of the proceedings.

Judge Walter Olds, Charles M. Niezer, William N. Ballou and Harry H. Hilgeman were the committee appointed to prepare the charges and after the proceedings in the superior court were disposed of they made a report to Judge Eggeman of the circuit court.

NEED THE CERTIFICATE.

Clerk's Attestation Vital to Second Registration.

Section 24, of the acts of 1913, concerning registration of voters, provides that where a voter has registered at the September session, and has moved into another precinct since the September registration, he may register in the precinct into which he has moved, by procuring of the city clerk a certificate showing his former registration, and presenting this certificate to the registration board in the precinct into which he has moved at the October session.

The statement has been inadvertently made that the certificate of the clerk as to the former registration, would not be necessary, but the law provides that before one can register a second time in a precinct into which he has moved since his first registration, he shall present along with his application to be registered a certificate of the city clerk showing his former registration.

Next Monday is the final date for registration.

Since I have used Fels-Naptha Soap I get my wash done so early that I can get through a good deal of ironing by Monday night, and it gives me extra time Tuesday. Besides, I am not tired. FOUGHT FRESH AIR; DIES AT AGE OF 81

Augustus Tibbetts, Remarkable Wabash County Character, Passes at Queer Home in Roann.

Wabash, Ind., Oct. 4.—There was buried yesterday at Roann an aged resident, Augustus Tibbetts, who was one of the most remarkable characters in this county. He was 81 years old and died of Bright's disease, after several months of suffering. The deceased was born in Rome, Maine, where he resided with his parents until he attained the age of 21 years.

From there he went to Cincinnati, where he studied medicine, and after being graduated, practiced in this city and vicinity for several years.

Being dissatisfied with the medical practice, he again removed, this time to Canton, N. Y., where he studied theology. While in this work Mr. Tibbetts met and married Miss Ada Suits, of Canton, the two making their home in Canton until twenty years later, when the wife was taken suddenly ill and passed away.

While in Canton Mr. Tibbetts became affiliated wtih the Universalist church and later became a minister in this denomination. In 1887 he removed to Indianapolis, where he met Miss Hattie Holderman, daughter of Cornelius Holderman, of Roann, they being united in wedlock and making their home in the capital city for the next twenty-six years, at the end of which time they removed to Roann, where they have since made their home.

Since taking up his abode in Roann Mr. Tibbetts has been considered one of the most remarkable characters in Northern Wabash county, owing to the fact that he has always been opposed to fresh air. The deceased has double windows and double doors in his house, keeping them closed both summer and winter so that no fresh air could enter. He was also a firm believer in spiritualism and during his last hours talked to his former wife continuously. The funeral services were held from the late home in Roann, being conducted by Rev. Jacobs. Interment in the Odd Fellows' cemetery at Roann.

FLOOD PREVENTION MEASURES.

People of Roanoke Want Cow Creek Dredged and Straightened.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 4.—In an effort to prevent further disastrous floods in Roanoke, the town board and about twenty property owners have filed a petition in circuit court asking that Cow creek, from its intersection with Seminary street to Little river, be deepened, widened and straightened.

Cow Creek has always been one of the first in that vicinity to get on a "rampage" when rain falls. Twice during the summer the creek has overflowed a part of the town, and it is thought the straightening, widening and deepening would relieve most such situations. Even in the case of such a general flood as came last March there would be a chance of its doing good.

As the petition names several other property holders in the town that would be affected, and who evidently do not think that it would be beneficial, there is every likelihood of a legal battle.

WIFE ALREADY HAS DIVORCE.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Minnie Holmes, who was made defendant in a divorce complaint filed at Fort Wayne a few days ago by Otis Holmes, announces that she is no longer the wife of Mr. Holmes, having been divorced from him at Robinson, Ill., during the early part of September. This announcement will probably come as a surprise to the former Bluffton man, who filed the complaint in the Allen circuit court. Mrs. Holmes was formerly Minnie Marsh, daughter of Joseph Marsh, of this city, and this county is the original home of Mr. Holmes. It is said Mrs. Holmes had been living in Illinois and had established a residence there.

FARMER SENT HER CAR FARE.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 4.—Christy Stogdill, a farmer living near Bluffton, admits that he was "stung" by an Indianapolis woman. He advertised for a housekeeper and received a reply from Indianapolis, bearing a woman's name. The writer offered to come if Stogdill would forward car fare. He complied, but the housekeeper failed to come. Stogdill made investigation and was not able to discover anyone by the name signed to the letter at the address given.

MOTHER! NO USE TAKING CHANCES

If child is cross, feverish, costive, give "California Syrup of Figs.

If your little one's tongue is coated, it is a sure sign the stomach, liver and bowels need a gentle, thorough cleansing at once. When your child is cross, peevish, listless, pale, doesn't sleep, eat or act naturally; if breath is bad, stomach sour, system full of cold, throat sore, or if feverish, give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the clogged-up, constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food will gently move out of the bowels, and you have a well, playful child again.

Sick children needn't be coaxed to take this harmless "fruit laxative." Millions of mothers keep it handy because they know its action on the stomach, liver and bowels is prompt and sure. They also know a little given today saves a sick child tomorrow.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which contains directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Don't be fooled!—Adv.

WERE WED IN HILLSDALE.

Whitley County Couple Run Away to Wed—Will Reside Here.

Columbia City, Ind., Oct. 4.—Alonzo L. Ditton, 23, of this city, and Anna M. Mathias, 18, of Richland township, just for fun and to be romantic, eloped to Hillsdale, Mich., and were married by Squire M. Weaver, returning home Thursday night, and leaving for North Manchester to witness the last day of the fair on their honeymoon trip before locating in Fort Wayne, where they will reside.

The young man is well known here as the lad who had his leg so badly smashed in a motorcycle accident a few years ago that it was feared he might have to have an amputation. He was in the county hospital for several months. The accident occurred just south of the city at the Brown hill. He has grown strong and hearty since that time, and for two years has been employed in the Pennsylvania railroad shops at Fort Wayne.

His bride is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Mathias, of Richland township, and she is a charming young woman who has many friends.

Kendallville, Ind., Oct. 4.—Kendallville's $40,000 municipal lighting and power plant will be in operation in the course of a few weeks unless some unforeseen hitch occurs with the work, according to the prediction of Fred Hess, chairman of the board of public works.

Practically all of the machinery has been installed and workmen are now busy installing pipe and making all necessary connections. The floor of the new building is now being laid. The switchboard furnished by the Fort Wayne Electric works is practically installed and the machinery will be started just as soon as all of the work is completed. Recently many residents have visited the plant and are able to see just how the massive machinery will look when the engines are set in motion.

CHINK GOT GAY WITH GIRL.

Huntington, Ind., Oct. 4.—Jim Lee Wang, a Chinese laundryman, whose place of business is located just north of South Jefferson street bridge, was fined $3 and costs in police court Friday morning upon a charge of provoke. The oriental's arrest resulted from attentions paid a daughter of a prominent Huntington family in a most unusual way. The identity of the girl, authorities refuse to divulge. Thursday the Chinese suitor personally delivered a letter to the girl containing a $5 gold piece, a transfer ticket on a local motion picture show and in addition a letter which is said to have contained statements branded as indecent by authorities. The girl upon receipt of the letter informed her parents, who in turn informed the authorities.

FELL DOWN STAIRS IN DARK.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 4.—Jeff Allen received serious and possibly fatal injuries at the home of Sidney Dillman, of near Dillman, when he fell down a flight of stair-steps in the darkness while either sleep-walking or becoming lost while going from one room to another through the darkness about 12 o'clock. The members of the family were awakened by hearing him falling down the steps. He was found crumpled up at the bottom of the stairs in a most peculiar manner, bleeding profusely from a large cut in the top of the head.

AGED LEESBURG WOMAN DIES.

Warsaw, Ind., Oct. 4.—Mrs. Mary A. Anglin, an old resident of Leesburg, is dead at her home in that place. The deceased was 89 years of age, and had been an invalid for the past three years, her last illness covering a period of ten weeks. Her death was due to no particular disease, the end coming as the result of extreme old age. Mrs. Anglin was one of the few of the very oldest pioneers of Kosciusko county still remaining that came here in an early day. She died at her own home, where she lived with her daughter, Mrs. Z. T. Byrer.

WHITLEY FARMER IS DEAD.

Columbia City, Ind., Oct. 4.—George W. Layne, one of the newcomers in Cleveland township, died at his home, five miles south of South Whitley, Friday after being confined to his bed for a month, death resulting from heart trouble and uremic poisoning. He came to Whitley county from Benton county and was married three years ago to Mrs. Estella Montayne, of Newton county, who survives him.

DREW A FARM IN MONTANA.

Bluffton, Ind., Oct. 4.—Leroy Brickley, a Markle boy, who went to North Dakota last summer, made an entry in the recent Montana land drawing, and found he had a lucky number, drawing 320 acres of good farming land on the Great Northern railroad, just a short distance from Glasgow, Mont. Immediately after drawing a party of land seekers from Illinois offered Brickley $5,000 for his rights, which he refused. He will soon return to Markle for the winter, but will go to Montana in the spring to work on his claim.

The grounds were put in shape for the first game of the season. The game was called at 2:30 p. m. with Hicksville at the bat and were successful in getting two scores. Our team had to content themselves with goose eggs until the last inning, when they copped out two runs. Hicksville got two again in the sixth and eighth innings. Hebrews 2:1-9.

1 Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip.

2 For if the word spoken by angels was stedfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompence of reward;

3 How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him.

4 God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will?

5 For unto the angels hath he not put in subjection the world to come, whereof we speak.

6 But one in a certain place testified, saying, What is man, that thou art mindful of him? or the son of man, that thou visitest him?

7 Thou madest him a little lower than the angels; thou crownedst him with glory and honour, and didst set him over the works of thy hands.

8 Thou hast put all things in subjection under his feet. For in that he put all in subjection under him, he left nothing that is not put under him. But now we see not yet all things put under him.

9 But we see Jesus, who was made a little lower than the angels for the suffering of death, crowned with glory and honour; that he by the grace of God should taste death for every man.

Under the New Tariff Law

President Wilson at 9:10 o'clock Friday evening affixed his signature which transformed the newly-enacted Simmons-Underwood tariff bill into the actuality of law. At that moment there went into effect the new tariff schedules framed and delivered by President Wilson and his party associates in congress in redemption of party pledges and in compliance with the direct command of the people as expressed at the polls when President Wilson was entrusted with the reins of government.

That it does actually redeem the party pledge and that it is real revision downward, even its enemies must admit. No enactment in many years has been so completely responsive to public will. The cut in the tariff has been in many instances radical. The democrats have not temporized with the situation. Criticism of the old Payne-Aldrich measure was widespread and condemnation almost universal. Even those who are committed to protection as a principle were but half-hearted and perfunctory in their defense of it.

The striking feature of the new tariff revision has been the cut in what we have come to regard as the actual necessaries of life—the products which every American family must purchase almost daily. In scores of instances there has been radical reduction of the former duties; in others these commodities have been placed absolutely upon the free list. It is the confident hope and the prediction of friends of the new law that the result will be a material reduction in the high cost of living. Of necessity governmental revenues must be raised by a tariff, but the new measure has sought to place the burden of tariff taxation on luxuries, not necessities. It is designed to give the great mass of the American people a share in its benefits. Now let us have a fair test and unbiased judgment upon the tariff law which President Wilson and democracy have given the people in unquestioned compliance with popular will.

Judge J. Frank Mungovan

It so comes about that of the non-partisan nominees in the present city campaign, Judge J. Frank Mungovan, of the municipal court, is alone occupying public place to which he is seeking re-election. That there was ample reason for the nomination of Judge Mungovan will be cheerfully admitted by all those who have taken occasion to note his career on the city court bench. Frank Mungovan has discharged and is discharging the duties of a most exacting position with marked ability and with a lofty conception of its true objects and purposes. He possesses to an admirable degree a clear sense of the position of the city court in its relation to the public, and the functions it should exercise in dealing with the complexity of cases that out of the flotsam and jetsam of a city come before it. He is broad-minded and humane, but at the same time demonstrates a stamina that is inflexible when occasion demands it. He is courageous, but he is sympathetic. He grasps the principle that the mission of his court is not merely to punish, but often to assist. Moreover, his moral sense is of the highest order, and no man can adequately measure the total of usefulness he has contributed to society in general during his tenure of the city court bench. Judge Mungovan amply merits re-election on his official record.

NO HEALTH, NO PAY.

(Fittsburg Dispatch.)

The Wisconsin State Medical society, meeting in Milwaukee yesterday, had for one of its chief topics discussion of a proposition to urge the adoption by modern doctors of the Chinese custom of no health, no pay. There the native medical practitioner draws pay from the family so long as the members remain well, his pay stopping when they become sick, and resuming on recovery. What happens when the patient dies is not stated.

The idea is brought before the Wisconsin doctors by the Anti-Tuberculosis association. Preventive methods in fighting diseases are coming to be recognized as the most essential. Recourse to the doctor only after disease has been contracted is held to be the least sensible. It is likened to keeping policemen at headquarters, and only calling for them after a crime has been committed. If, says the advocates of the Chinese custom, the doctors of the United States were retained to keep the nation in health, to prevent disease, they would be able to accomplish incalculably more for the country than is possible under the existing system.

This Wisconsin suggestion may be, and probably is, years ahead of the times, but it may one day be adopted as the rational course. We insure against fire, accident and death. The Chinese system of medical service, limited, we believe, to some parts of China, and necessarily in effectiveness by the lack of science among the native practitioners, is the germ of an insurance against disease. We pay the cost of the others more or less cheerfully. Some day we may do the same with the doctors.

Bossing Rome Hardest Mayoring Job in the World, Says Successor of the Caesars

He's Really Mayor of Three Cities, You See—One Ancient, One Medieval and Another Modern—And J. Caesar, or Nero or Mike Angelo or Somebody is Always Butting In.

(By W. G. Shepherd.)

Rome, Oct. 4.—"So the mayor of Fort Wayne thinks he has a hard time of it now and then, huh?" said Ernesto Nathan, the world-famed mayor of Rome, to me. "Well, he ought to try my job for a while.

"It's no fun to be mayor of the oldest city in Europe. Why, I've got the hardest mayor's job in the world.

"There are three cities here in Rome. There's the old city that the Romans left, the city of ruins. It's my job to take care of that.

"Then there's the part of the city that belongs to the middle ages; the old churches and the glorious art. I've got to take charge of that.

"Then there's the modern city of Rome, which had a population of 100,000 not many years ago, and which now has 600,000 residents.

"Now, here's where my job comes in. We have to make the narrow streets adequate for modern-day travel. But just the minute that we start to widen a street up comes some archaeologist who says, 'For goodness sake, mayor, you're not going to move that old stone, are you? Why, it's been there 2,000 years.'

A MODERN CAESAR RUNNING ROME.

MAYOR ERNESTO NATHAN.

"You know what I say?" continued the mayor. "I just tell 'em it's —— near time it was moved then! I'm not going to have any dead hands reaching up out of the old Roman graves and pointing out to us modern folks here what to do. The old Romans ran their city the way they wanted to and we modern Romans are going to do the same thing.

"Now, those old ruins out there"—pointing through his window to the remnants of the forum and the coliseum—"are mine. My administration has just spent about half a million dollars building a park around 'em, and it's going to be a great park, too. But there's a limit to this relic business.

"Then there's the old churches they keep telling me we must n't move. And when I try to extend the municipal-owned street car lines they make awful howls when we plan to pass a cathedral or to cross a famous street.

"You know the Corso, which runs through the business district, is an old race course of the ancient Romans, and for that reason there are a lot of folks here who don't want teh city to let a street car line cross it. So we're going to run the street car line underneath it.

"On one street a famous artist once lived, so we can't run a street car line there. What are you going to do? There isn't a square foot of Rome that isn't famous for some reason or other, but we can't keep it sacred to our own inconvenience."

Then the mayor told me about his latest fight.

"Look at this city hall I'm in here, he said. "'Michael Angelo built it. I wish he could come back and do the job over again.

"I don't say it isn't artistic, but Michael Angelo built it in three sections, and to get from one section to another you have to go down to the ground floor and go out doors. Now I got tired of that and I had some men come and put passageways between the buildings at every floor.

"The new work was so well done that it looked just like the old stone. But what did the arbiters of art do? They raised an awful howl. They said I had no right to touch Michael Angelo's work and that I had spoiled his whole design.

"Well, I'm tearing down the passageways now just to keep 'em quiet, but it means an awful lot of extra stair climbing and walking for the men who work in the city hall and for visitors.

"Now, I know that if Michael Angelo himself could come back and see how much we needed the passageways, he'd fix things all up pretty quickly. But just because he's been dead a good many generations we can't improve the buildings.

"'Dead hands'—that's what I call 'em—these people who care more for the old relics than they do for the comfort of living Romans. I give it to 'em once in a while, but it wasn't Julius Caesar or Nero that elected me mayor; it was the twentieth century folks in Rome today, and I've got to look out for 'em."

The folks in Rome like Mayor Nathan, too. He was re-elected the other day to spend four years more in his hard job.

PRESS ON RUMORS OF THIRD BALKAN WAR.

"War Already Staged."

Boston Post: "The trend of all the news dispatches from the Balkans is that another general war is already staged and due to begin with great ferocity at almost any time."

"Turks Pressing Advantage."

New York Press: "The Turks have been pressing the advantages gained in the second war, and seemingly have forced Bulgaria, Servia, Greece and Montenegro into a renewal of the first entente."

"Bulgaria Robbed."

Washington Herald: "Bulgaria, whose victorious fight made possible the success of the other states, has been robbed of territory by Roumania, and the small strip of land she is permitted to retain hardly is worth having and most assuredly not worth the terrible price she had to pay for it."

"No Settlement."

Cleveland Leader: "There will be no permanent settlement in Southeastern Europe until the Turks shall have been driven out of every corner of that continent. To narrow their possessions is not enough."

"More Ominous."

Washington Post: "A third war inside a year impends in the Balkans, more ominous for Europe at large, in the opinion of foreign observers, than the previous conflicts."

"Austria."

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "If a war really does result from the aggressions of the Albanians it is more than likely that the Servian advance will again extend as far as the Adriatic. And then Austria will once more attempt to persuade the great powers to order an evacuation."

LEADERSHIP OF HIGHEST TYPE.

(New York World.)

It was a deserved tribute which Speaker Clark, from the floor of the house of representatives, paid to President Wilson. He denied the assertion that the president had unduly influenced congress in tariff legislation. He congratulated the chief magistrate upon the part that he had taken in the great work. He gave very sincere indorsement to the legitimate influence of the executive when he said:

"If I had been elected president, I should have got a good tariff bill through this house as sure as you are alive, if I do say it."

In spite of some ill-natured criticism of Mr. Wilson, there has been nothing to show a single misstep on his part. He has not used official patronage either as a bribe or a club. He has indulged in no threats. He has addressed himself wholly to congress. In public speech as in private conference he has appealed only to reason and conscience.

The president is the head of the national government, but he is also the head of his party. Failure to recognize this fact in either case would be only to invite disaster. In Mr. Wilson's relations with his fellow democrats in congress there has been true co-operation, with nothing fixed or arbitrary except principles and pledges.

Political leadership of the highest type is so rare that Speaker Clark honored his party and himself no less than the president when he eulogized it.

"SUMMIT FARMS"

AT HUNTERTOWN

340 acres, called the "Summit Farms", because the drainage is in two directions, NORTHEAST via the Saint Joe and Maumee rivers to Toledo, and through the Lakes into the gulf of Saint Lawrence, and SOUTHWEST via Eel River, the Wabash, the Ohio and the Mississippi, into the gulf of Mexico.

These farms are now platted into 40-acre tracts and by reason of proximity to interurban R. R., only ¼ mile from stop 23, will sell quickly. "Back to the farm" is now the cry everywhere, "more food or a famine; too many people crowding into the cities."

"The comforts of the country life" have increased rapidly of late, everything now looks to a great "farm revival, the pendulum is swinging back to the farm." Interurban railroads, daily mail deliveries at the farmer's door. Excellent telephone service, and cheap, barns and stables all brilliantly lighted up at night—"most useful at the hour of the milking of the cows." All of these added to the sure certainty of a large family of eight (8), "always having something to eat in the house," with their own cows for milk, their own chickens in great abundance, their own pigs in the "piggery," growing so fat as to look like bursting, and with their own vegetables from their own garden, all of these make life in the country eminently desirable now.

These "Summit Farms" are only ⅜ of a mile south of the G. R. & I. R. R., Huntertown station; only ¼ mile west of stop numbered 23, on the interurban R. R., with a car to and from Fort Wayne every hour and ten minutes, from 6 a. m. to 11 p. m., more comfortable than a private carriage, warm in winter, less expensive, and quicker, 30 miles an hour against 6 in the carriage.

Three interurban stations in mile distance, at stops numbered 22, 22½ and 23, bring these farms into town, almost, the R. R. fare only 20 cents from either of the 3 stations.

MANY PEOPLE CURED

FORT WAYNE DOCTORS PROVE THEIR MERIT.

United System Cures When Others Fail.

Perhaps no institution or physician in Fort Wayne has been able to please everyone. If any one doctor could have his patients work with him long enough and he had proper medical training and experience in the treatment of all diseases, one doctor in any community would probably have all the medical work to be done.

The enormous number of patients the United Specialists are now treating at their institution at 124 E. Washington blvd. must certainly have come from satisfied or cured patients who have sent other afflicted people to them.

The last court of resort in any situation is always the people. The great Lincoln claimed that you could fool all the people a part of the time, but not all of the people all of the time. The judgment of the people of Fort Wayne and vicinity has been highly favorable to the United Specialists. This is proven by the remarkable number of patients that are being treated by them from day to day.

On Friday alone, by actual count, nearly fifty persons called at the offices of these specialists. These people represented the best element in this community, and it is safe to say that at least two-thirds of them had been referred to them by cured or satisfied patients.

Their system of treatment has truly brought most remarkable results. Of course, they cannot cure people who are not willing to follow their instructions. They really do not want to treat people who think they know more than the doctor does about their condition.

As has been stated before they have a number of patients under treatment who have been sent to them by other physicians and the great number of letters published in these columns by cured or satisfied people ought to convince the most skeptical as to the great value of the work they are doing.

Read the following testimonial:

To Whom This May Concern:

October 3, 1913.

I began treatment on August 20 with the United Specialists for a very aggravated case of rheumatism which was so bad that I could hardly get about and was practically unable to do any work whatever. Their treatment has so far relieved me that I am at this time a well man, and if my testimonial will be of any value in inducing others to take treatment I am sure that the United Specialists will be able to do as much for them as they did for me.

HARRY PICKETT,
1305 E. Wayne St.

Many men who had formerly been treated for years have asked the United Specialists to refer other men to them. They treat all chronic and nervous diseases, including Goitre, Rheumatism, all Stomach and Intestinal Troubles, Rectal Diseases, Epilepsy and all Special Diseases of Men and Women.

Their offices are located at 124 E. Washington blvd. They will examine the afflicted free of charge. They accept no incurable cases. Their hours are from 9-12, 1-5 and 9-12 Sundays.—Adv.

Father French brought out the fact that the devotion is being held in order that the people may get closer to God. He compared it to the homecomings of the social world, and said that in a greater sense the forty hours is a going back home, going back to God, for many have been negligent and recreant to their duties.

On Sunday morning masses will be celebrated at 6, 7:30, 9 and 10:15 o'clock and on Sunday evening the solemn closing of the devotion will be held. The statute provides that when the commissioners are presented with a petition signed by 200 resident freeholders of the county, the board may order the purchase or erection of such institution.

Hope hospital is heavily in debt, and at the meeting next week, something definite will be done in settling the affairs of the institution.

Surely not the young women who have chosen this time for their wedding day and the number of to-be brides of the month give mute testimony to the fact. WILL ATTEND THE STATE CONFERENCE OF D. A. R.

Members of Mary Penrose Wayne Chapter Go to Crawfordsville on Tuesday.

MRS. FRANCES HABERLY ROBERTSON.

The thirteenth annual conference of the Indiana Daughters of the American Revolution will open Tuesday, October 7, in Crawfordsville and will continue the two days following. Mrs. Maurice Thompson, regent of the Dorothy Q, the Crawfordsville chapter, will open the conference at its first session on Tuesday evening and will deliver the welcoming address to visiting Daughters. The response will be given by Mrs. W. A. Cullop, who is state vice regent and the main address of the evening will be given by the regent of Indiana, Mrs. Frances Haberly Robertson, of this city.

Following the addresses an informal reception will be held. On Wednesday the program will include the reports of the capter regents of the state and there will be discussions of such topics as the "Welfare of Women and Children," "Children of the Republic," "Conservation," "Girl Homemakers of America," "Mountain Children," Reciprocity Bureau," "A Safe and Sane Fourth." The state historian's report will be one of the interesting items of this big program of subjects of today and the bearing they all have on the future.

On Wednesday evening there will be dinner given at the Masonic temple for the Daughters and a reception at the home of Mrs. Thompson will follow. This will not be the only social feature which the women of the Crawfordsville chapter have arranged for the pleasure of the visitors, either, for on Thursday noon there will be a luncheon at the Country club. As the Crawfordsville Country club is located on the farm belonging to General Lew Wallace, that fact alone will lend to the visitors an interest in the social gathering that would not otherwise extend beyond personal pleasure.

Indeed, Fort Wayne visitors, at any rate, will feel a pride in their native or adopted state that will rest itself not alone on the patriotic devotion to the country and the flag which the descendants of the American revolution are bound to feel by right of their forbears' accomplishment, but for what the people in Crawfordsville feel proud of too, her writers, her college and her historic ground.

It will be worth something to be guests in the house in which Maurice Thompson wrote "Alice of Old Vincennes" or to step on the soil which the writer of the great story of Ben Hur trod day after day and year and year.

A number of women who are members of the local chapter are going to the conference, either as delegates or by right of their official position and others may attend because of their individual interest in the society. Miss Margaret Vesey, regent of Mary Penrose Wayne chapter, Mrs. E. H. Merritt, a delegate, and Mrs. James B. Crankshaw, who is state chairman of the Girl Homemakers' department of the Indiana society, will leave on Tuesday morning for Crawfordsville. The state regent, Mrs. Robertson, will first make a visit in Wabash where she is to be the honor guest on Monday at a luncheon to be given by the Frances Slocum chapter, which she has been interested in organizing. From Wabash, together with Daughters from that city's chapter, Mrs. Robertson will go on to Crawfordsville and during her stay there will be the guest of Mrs. Maurice Thompson.

Next Friday afternoon the Washington School Parent-Teacher club will hold its opening meeting and all mothers are to be rallied to the attendance. An address will be given by Rev. A. J. Folsom concerning the school as a social center and he will emphasize the point that the Parent-Teacher club is a great factor in that direction. There will be a musical program at this meeting. All mothers and other relatives or guardians of children of the district are urged to attend.

Notes of Study Clubs

Mrs. George W. Beers will be hostess for a meeting of the Woman's Reading club on Tuesday. Mrs. G. M. Naylor and Mrs. Beers will present the program, which is announced.

The club will also begin a travel journey through Italy and from Turin to Genoa will be sketched by Mrs. Quicksell.

The Nineteenth Century club will meet on Tuesday with Mrs. Edwin Dalman. This club will take imaginary journeys through England and will start for Londerry at this meeting, via Montreal, Quebec, on either Allen or Anchor line. Miss Abigail Keegan is the leader for the day.

The Saturday club has issued its year book and the outline of work embraces a new line designated as "timely topics." In connection with the "topics" will be a continuation of the study of the drama which this club has been doing for several years. Two by Charles Rann Kennedy, one of the Henry Arthur Jones coredies, and Houghton's "Hindle Wakes" are the specified dramas. The officers of the club are Mrs. D. A. Corey, president; Mrs. E. A. Donnan, vice president, and Mrs. Hans Fick, treasurer and secretary. Mrs. Chester T. Lane is chairman of the program committee. Mrs. Corey and Mrs. H. B. Sale, assistants.

The General Culture club begins work next Thursday with reminiscences of vacation time, with Mrs. F. A. Emrick, who lives on rural route No. 14, as the hostess. Mrs. Erwin will be the leader and there will be a reading by Miss Margaret Gosborn and a vacation story by Mrs. Franke.

Mary Penrose Wayne chapter opens its season's work next Monday with a meeting with the regent of the chapter, and Miss Jennie Gorley will be assisting Miss Margaret Vesey. Mrs. Sarah Vesey, Mrs. Heaton, Mrs. Yaple, Mrs. White and Miss Jennie Gorley will be assisting hostesses. The topic of discussion is, "Bits of Ancestry—Wise and Otherwise." A new committee, that of the press, has been added to the official workers of the chapter and Mrs. James B. Crankshaw and Mrs. B. J. Griswold are its members.

The first meeting of the Fortnightly club will be held on Monday evening with Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Worden, of West Wayne street. A musical program will be given and in charge of the program are Mrs. Worden, Mrs. C. A. Dunkelburg and Mrs. B. Paul Mossman.

URUGUAY IS TO TRY A NEW PLAN

LIKE RAILROAD PLAN

(By Gilson Gardner.)

Washington, Oct. 4.—According to reports which reach Washington from Consul Frederick W. Goding, at Montevideo, the government of Uruguay is about to institute an entirely new plan for controlling the sale of alcoholic drinks in that country.

Existing saloons will not be allowed to be sold, ceded, inherited, change owners nor be improved; and the property will be expropriated on the death of the owner, 1 per cent. of the receipts of the office of public assistance (charities) being destined for such purpose.

This plan is on all fours with a scheme which is being seriously considered by many public men who are in favor of our own government taking over the railroads of the country. They would apply the plan to railroads instead of saloons.

The scheme is known as government acquisition by the issue of non-inheritable bonds. For instance, title to the railroad property could be secured in the government through the exercise of the right of eminent domain; but the bonds issued to cover the value of the property, while bearing interest as usual, and so paying a profit to the former owners, would be non-redeemable, non-transferable, and on the death of the holder would become void, and the property represented by them would revert to the government.

Thus by a simple expedient of making these bonds non-inheritable the government would in a single generation become possessed of the railroad properties outright, paying only a comparatively low rate of interest to the original bondholders during their lifetime. This, too, without doing any injustice to anyone, for those who hold these properties at present will be provided for, and it cannot reasonably be argued that anyone else should be provided for. No logical reason, for instance, can be advanced why the son of a railroad magnate should inherit from his father the right to exploit the people. If we provide that the father shall continue to receive his dividends during his lifetime, that is all that may reasonably be demanded.

It is very probable that a bill will be introduced into congress in the near future embodying this scheme of taking over the railroads of the country.

Now that the department of labor has actually become a part of the governmental machine, there seems to be a disposition on the part of the democrats in the house to ditch it. There is no other apparent reason why the department should be deliberately crippled by being denied funds with which to operate. Secretary William B. Wilson asked congress for the modest sum of $262,000, but when the general deficiency bill went through the house, the item was cut to $87,000. This is an absurd sum with which to carry out the functions of the department. The result will be that the department cannot carry on the work assigned to it. Especially is this true in regard to its function of arbitrating trade disputes. The amount provided for this arbitration work, which is one of the most important functions of the department, is so small that the provisions of the law simply cannot be carried out. Since last March the department has arbitrated eleven cases. In practically all of them it has been successful in averting a strike and consequent demoralization of business and suffering of workers. But the house bill, which limits the expenditure of the little money which it does appropriate to payment of expenses only of commissioners of conciliation, thus practically debars the commissioners from employing men who have the necessary training and knowledge to be of aid in labor disputes.

No allowance at all for printing is carried by the bill. Other cabinet officers get plenty of funds for printing public documents issued by them, but the department of labor gets nothing under this bill. It asked for $25,000 and the item was stricken out. The department now has on hand about $875 for printing and binding, an amount which will scarcely cover the secretary's annual report, to say nothing of the documents which it is required by law to print and distribute.

Unless the senate comes to the rescue and restores a reasonable amount of money to carry on the work, the department of labor might just as well go out of business.

Almost every day a new scheme is broached in congress for federal aid to good roads. The latest is one by Dorsey W. Shackleford, of Missouri, who thinks the best plan would be for the states to build roads and the government to maintain them. This, he believes, would be sufficient stimulation. He would appropriate $15 per mile from the federal treasury for each mile of road constructed by the states up to federal specifications. He would have the government pay $25,000,000 a year for maintaining state built roads.

WHAT BILLIE BURKE THINKS OF PATIENCE

BY BILLIE BURKE.

"I get mighty tired of reading of those wonderful rewards that come to the patient woman."

"I find it is the woman who is not meek who gets what she deserves and, perhaps, a little more."

It is the people who make things disagreeable for us, if we do not suit them, that we try to placate.

"We have little respect for those who turn the other cheek."

If mother is impatient, the children will be more than careful not to worry her, and the wife that will make things uncomfortable for hubby if she does not have her way usually gets it.

Patience or meekness do not really loom so large as a virtue as we have been taught. There is no particular reason why one should be patient with a selfish, self-centered person who insists that the world must be run for her benefit. It would probably do her good and broaden her character to realize that she must consider others.

One must not confuse patience with consideration. To have consideration means that you are just, that you will give to every one his due and will not arrogate all the attention and thought and care of every one about you to yourself.

Patience means meekly accepting all sorts of uncomfortable circumstances rather than hurt the feelings of some very thoughtless, selfish person who should be taught better.

That biblical promise, "Blessed are the meek, for they shall inherit the earth," usually means, in modern parlance, a nice, round lump of mud in the neck. The man who has inherited a farm, a gold mine, a lumber forest or an acre or two of land in the heart of New York or Chicago simply because he is meek and lowly has not sent in his name to the newspapers yet.

It would seem as though the successful woman of today should try and eliminate patience from her list of virtues and put into its place consideration.

Consideration for others is a splendid qualification. A meekness that bears with selfishness and whim is silly.

Girl bowlers at the Wayne Knitting mills are about ready to organize for the coming season and will call a meeting in a few days. The alleys have been undergoing repairs and this has delayed the start of the season.

SUFFRAGETTES ADMIT ARSON.

Confess Firing Mansion and Hope Good Job Was Made of It.

London, Oct. 4.—Militant suffragettes this morning set fire to a large unoccupied Riverside house at Hampton-on Thames, a few miles above London. Two women were arrested on suspicion. A large quantity of suffrage literature was found strewn about the grounds.

The women were identified in police court as Miss May Richardson and Miss Rachael Peace. Miss Richardson, who was recently released from prison, where she was serving a term of three months' imprisonment, admitted that she had set fire to the house and hoped she had made a good job of it. The women were remanded for further hearing without bail.

THEATRE

Frank Bush, Famous Story-Teller, Heads Temple's New Novelty Bill

The Temple enters the list the coming first four days of the week with a bill of novelties and humor that is sure to attract attention from that class of the theater-going public who are always on the lookout for something new and at the same time amusing. In these days of high prices for everything except the vaudeville, the tendency is toward something different, especially in the amusement line and it has been the aim of the Temple management to present new acts and new faces and altogether a vaudeville performance that is different.

To the average patron the name of this or that vaudeville performer does not mean much, for they don't know him. All they want to know, has it ever been here before? and if so, we will wait to see something new. With this thought in view the Temple booking department, which has access to all the leading acts in the country, arranges its bills to show new acts and new faces and at the same time present something that is always entertaining.

The new bill consists of Frank Bush, America's famous story teller, and to the theatergoer in general, a "rose by any other name would smell as sweet," but to the press agent, that wise guy who knows all there is to know about publicity, the name of Frank Bush is something to conjure with, as he is the one big time vaudevillian that stands at the head of his profession in the master art of story telling.

Another aim of the Temple booking department is to choose at least one act on the program that will appeal particularly to the many ladies and children who regularly attend matinee performances, and with this end in view they engaged Lord Robert, the smallest comedian in the world. Now the special representative of the Temple press department could write a page in glowing terms of all the acts that will be seen at that theater the coming week, but its publication is another matter; the editor's blue pencil would probably come into play, for he (that is, the editor) does not always think as the press agent. However, included in the bill are Romalo and Delano, college athletes in gymnastic sports and pastimes; Rawson and June, Australian boomerang throwers, and last but not least important, Grace Leonard, the American boy and Tom Dempsey in impersonations, pianologues and singing. For the first half the Mutual weekly will present all the latest world events in motion pictures.

On Monday afternoon Little Lord Robert will receive the children on the stage after the matinee performance, and the management announces for this occasion that all children six years of age and under, accompanied by their parents or guardian, will be admitted free. The bill for the second half of the week, opening Thursday, will be headed by a comedy playlet entitled "The Boatswain's Mate."

AT THE JEFFERSON

The Jefferson is offering an unusual three-reel feature in "Bleeding Hearts," or, Jewish Freedom Under King Casimer of Poland.

Wandering Jews from other lands, weary and sick from torture and oppression, land in Poland during the 14th century. These unfortunate people appeal to King Casimer for help and sympathy. They plead for deliverance from their past continued inquisitions. The count learns of the arrival of the Jews, and with his accomplices, they endeavor to persuade the king from allowing the Jews to remain in Poland, when the good priest Prandola intervenes, and manages to persuade King Casimer to allow the wanderers to remain and make their home in Poland.

The Jews pray and thank the king for befriending them. The count is enraged to think that his persuasion was of no avail. He secretly plots to incite an uprising against the Jews. In the meantime the king meets a young Jewess, named Esther, the daughter of a rabbi. The king tells the count of his love, and when the villain spies Esther he himself falls in love with her. A few days later, the count steals the young Jewess from her home, and places her in the care of an old drunken hag. He then reports to the king that the young Jewess has been drowned by her infuriated father, to which he adds that for a just punishment the Jews deserve execution.

King Casimer sends out an edict to kill all the Jews. The night before the terrible massacre, the count and his noblemen feast and get drunk. He orders the spies to bring Esther that evening to him and to tell her of his revenge against the foes. As the spies try to drag the poor girl out of the room, one of the men steal a bottle from the old hag. This causes a brawl, and in the fight that ensues, the old woman is struck on the head. The men carry the Jewess away. The old woman rises and confronts the priest. The old hag confesses to him the story, and tells him that the Jewess is in the power of the count. The king hurriedly rushes to the palace of the nobleman and in a disguise rescues the girl from the hands of the count. King Casimer orders the arrest of the count and immediately sends a courier to the scene of the execution, who arrives in time to save the Jews from the awful sacrifice. The king tenders a banquet in honor of his marriage to Esther. "Henceforth, there shall be peace between Poland and the Jews."

Each person attending the matinee will be given a souvenir photograph of the midget.

8,000 FEET OF FILM TELLS STORY OF THE NOVEL THAT JACK LONDON MADE FAMOUS.

Scenes from the motion picture play depicting Jack London's famous novel, "Sea Wolf." Upper, Humphrey Van Weyden and Maud Brewster are marooned on the lonely island. Center, the Ghost, the Sea Wolf's ship, and below, Larsen, the Sea Wolf, is shown defending himself single-handed against the mutinous crew in the forecastle of the Ghost.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 4.—Eight thousand feet of film will tell in motion pictures the story of the "Sea Wolf," the novel that made Jack London famous. The production will cost $50,000 and will require a cast of sixty-two players.

The three main characters of the story-drama are Larsen, the Sea Wolf, played by Hobart Bosworth, manager of the production; Humphrey Van Weyden, played by Herbert Rawlinson, and Maud Brewster, played by Viola Barry, daughter of J. Stitt Wilson, former socialist mayor of Berkeley, Cal.

In London's "Sea Wolf" Humphrey Van Weyden is a very anaemic super-intellectualized literary artist who, in a collision between two ferry boats in San Francisco bay, is hurled into the water and swept seaward through the Golden Gate until picked up by Wolf Larsen, the dominating, red-blooded, modern Viking, and carried away on his ship, the Ghost, to wild adventures in the loney ocean wilds, from which he returns a man in body as well as in soul and mind, and winner of the love of Maud Brewster.

The first part of the pictures are taken in San Francisco bay and the rest near San Pedro. A specially constructed ship is used and is wrecked at the end.

The pictures will include scenes on London's Glenn Ellen ranch and will show the author at work.

Stageland's Greatest Water Sports Novelty on New Bill at Empress

There have been "aquatic and then aquatic acts," but it has remained for the Sullivan & Considine alliance of theaters to present what will be about the last word in this kind of specialties. Heading the new Empress bill for the week's engagement will be the "Six Diving Nymphs," rightly termed "Stageland's most prodigious water sports novelty." This act consists of swimming and diving exhibitions in which the sextet of charming girls show all the famous strokes used by swimmers throughout the world and give exhibitions of diving that are sensational in the extreme, from the highest point on the stage. Their tank is the largest ever used for stage purposes and the entire act is the biggest ever attempted in vaudeville. There is an air of youth and girlish freshness in this delightful aquatic exhibition. On Friday night there will be an amateur diving contest for both boys and girls, the winner being presented with $5 in gold. The new Empress show for the ensuing week will contain many interesting and surprising features; in fact, it is to be one of the most entertaining shows of the season, if the critics of the Detroit papers can be accepted.

After presenting the same sketch for more than fifteen years, Mr. and Mrs. Perkins Fisher find their charming rural comedy, "The Half-Way House," more sought after than ever, hence their visit here next week can safely be viewed with genuine pleasure. From the pen of the late Ezra Kendall, "The Half-Way House" stands as one of vaudeville's real and few classics. Mr. Fisher has identified himself as completely with the character of Silas Older as did Josh Whitcomb become the second and dual personality of Denman Thompson. The charm and naturalness of this playlet is most refreshing and one can see it over and over again with new interest each time.

Dave Ferguson, storiette songster, needs little introduction to the local show-going public. He has returned after an extended European tour where he was heralded as the best monologist in vaudeville. His humor is keen and unctous and is reminiscent of that famous Sol Smith Russell, whose quiet and gentle humor has never been equalled. When one leaves the theater after listening to Dave Ferguson one feels as though one had really met the man and had been entertained by a quiet little chat, the memory of which remains for days.

Something new an delightful will be revealed in the appearance of the Three Musketeers. They offer their original military singing travesty, "At the Camp." The spontaneous comedy and the humorous situations incorporated in this act makes it one of the most enjoyable "worry killers" now upon the stage. For speed and sensational aerial work Price and Price are declared to excel many of the best acts in America. Their act does not consume more than six minutes, but into this short time is displayed some of the most novel and daring feats ever seen upon the stage. Paddock and Paddock are smart singers and dancers.

There will be the usual daily matinees throughout the week, with two souvenir matinees on Thursday afternoon.

SENTINEL WANT ADS ALWAYS GET RESULTS

UNSIGHTLY HAIR MADE BEAUTIFUL BY THE USE OF NEWBRO'S HERPICIDE

Many ladies are, and many more should be, ashamed when they look in a glass and see their hair.

The condition of some is almost a disgrace. It simply shows that while they may be scrupulously neat in every other way, they are careless about their hair

Thin, scraggy, wispy hair generally indicates dandruff which is due to a germ. Newbro's Herpicide will remove the dandruff and keep the scalp clean and healthy. This permits the hair to grow naturally and luxuriantly and to take on that gloss and beauty which always follows the intelligent use of Herpicide. That annoying itching of the scalp which always goes with dandruff stops almost with the first application.

You may sometimes be offered "something just as good" but you will be better satisfied if you insist upon having the original dandruff germ killer, Newbro's Herpicide. If you wish to try this scalp prophylactic send 10 cents in postage or silver to The Herpicide Company, Dept. R, Detroit, Mich. You will receive a sample size bottle of Herpicide and a booklet telling all about the care of the hair by return mail.

"PRINCESS" PLAYING HER PART PERFECTLY.

(By Gertrude M. Price.)

A private dramatic school for nice, strong, ambitious wild animals who fancy a footlight career has been established near Fort Lee, N. J.

To be quite explicit, the purpose of this novel institution is the training of beasts for the moving picture stage.

Every one wonders how the wonderful wild animal pictures are made. But did it ever occur to any one that, perhaps, these wild animals had to be coached in their strange parts sometimes?

Monsieur Paul Bourgeois, a young French animal trainer, first thought of training the jungle inhabitants to appear before the camera, and he immediately founded the school of which he is still the director.

In this picture you see Princess, a type of one of the largest beasts of the jungle, in the studio doing her part in a movie play, perfectly. Of course, if she forgot and turned wild again, even for a minute, it might be very bad for the mere man who is playing the part with her.

But there is always a chance to be taken when players act with these big beasts.

Tan, a big leopard, is just going over his part.

The studio, a short distance out of Fort Lee, is a low, one-story building, standing in the center of a small wood. The studio is equipped with a stage, scenery and skylight, all essential to the operation of any moving picture plant. The animals are kept caged in a large menagerie adjoining the studio, and are taken out only for the daily rehearsals.

M. Bourgeois has his own way of managing these creatures. It is not by leather whip and red hot iron bars, but by patience, firmness and kindness.

"TAN" POSING FOR CAMERA MAN.

With a few slight exceptions, the principles of animal posing and human acting are the same. When a film requiring beasts is to be made, the animals are first trained regularly in their simple movements until the performance becomes a habit, since they respond to instinct rather than intelligence.

Originality must be used by the trainers to make their charges do the right thing at the right time for the camera man. For this purpose, common devices include coating tree branches with honey to keep bruin aloft the entire length of a scene or exposing a chicken, off the stage, when a fox should jump out of a window.

The animals feel at home only when in the studio. Consequently the company of human actors must go to Fort Lee when a film with animals in it is made.

A remarkable circumstance is the fact that the players are seldom hurt by the animals.

Women, maintains the director, seem even more fearless than men, and the beasts, in turn, seem to show more confidence when with them and with children.

STRANGE WORLD GREETS CONVICT

He Can Scarce Believe His Own Eyes and Ears Since Being Free.

SEES A FAIRYLAND

Columbus, Ohio, Oct. 3.—One of the Emancipation day pardons granted by Governor Cox released John Taborn, Delaware county murderer, and he became a free man for the first time in forty-three years. During his entire term in prison he was outside the walls but once, and then only for a little while.

John Taborn entered the prison on August 16, 1870, at the age of 23. He comes out at 66 "to start all over again," as he said. His shoulders were bowed with the weight of years and hard labor, but his mind and eyes were clear. He looked about him with wonder at a world which long had been growing toward a new development.

Living in the heart of a city, he had never ridden in a street car, never talked over a telephone, never seen a skyscraper, never ridden in an elevator, never seen a moving picture or an arc light or a bicycle or an automobile. He had never heard a phonograph. As for aeroplanes and wireless telegraphy, he could not even imagine them, he said, though he had seen a picture of an aeroplane in a book, once.

From his seat in the prison yard, where he sat day by day after age prevented him from doing the hard work of the prison, the old prisoner had watched the skyline change over the top of the prison wall. He saw skyscrapers poke their tops over the edge of the wall and wondered at them and the manner of their construction. He wondered often, he said, at what kind of people were doing these things, but guards told him little, and about the only information he received of the world outside came from new prisoners. During his term he watched 33,658 of them come and go. After the first few years no friends came to see him, though attempts had been made to obtain a pardon for him.

Begged for a Guide.

When Warden P. E. Thomas carried his pardon to him the old prisoner received the news stolidly, but he lost no time in donning the blue serge suit given to each prisoner leaving the institution, accepted a purse of $20 which prisoners made up for him, and thanked them and the warden for the $20 given him by the state. But as he started from the prison his nerve failed him, and he asked that some one from the prison might go with him and remain with him until he got used to things."

Warden Thomas delegated his secretary, Frank O'Bleness, to accompany him, and together they rode up the street in the prison automobile. It was Taborn's first automobile ride and in the first one he had ever seen. As he rode along the paved streets, new to him, the old man leaned out of the side of the machine. His eyes drank in everything. He was so deeply interested that he did not hear several remarks addressed to him, but he said little. He asked to be taken to the governor that he might thank him for his pardon before he did anything else.

Governor Cox received him with interest and questioned him closely.

"You went to the penitentiary the same year that I was born," the governor remarked.

In reply to the governor's questions Taborn said he had no relatives living; no personal property and no friends whose whereabouts he knew, or in fact whether they were living or dead. He thanked the governor with tears in his eyes, and turney away and then returned to thank him again.

Next he was taken for a walk about the streets. He was like a child. His eyes wandered everywhere and he was constantly in people's way. Unaccustomed noises made him start with almost catlike quickness. He gazed in awe at skyscrapers in the business section and finally asked to be taken through one. Going in he became tangled up in a revolving door and and had to be extricated. He got on an elevator and rode up several stories before being aware that he had moved. He did not know how to find his way out of the building.

Taborn breathed a sigh of relief when he got on solid ground again. He had been no higher in the air than the second story of a building since his imprisonment.

People Have Changed.

"It's hard to explain," he said. "Everything looks so strange. People seem to move about faster than when I went to prison. They move differently and more businesslike. My! How much faster business must be conducted There are so many automobiles, and they travel so fast. That's what surprises me most—so many automobiles. When people got around in my day it was with horses and buggies, and only a few people had them. Now everybody seems to have automobiles. I heard in prison that the world was moving faster: now I know it.

"People seem to be more particular in their dress and actions. The general run of people look like they have more sense than in my time. That is, they look more intelligent, especially the women. Women look a whole lot more businesslike than when I went to prison. I can't explain it very well, but somehow it seems to be a different sort of a world, doing things in a different way."

Taborn was taken through several stores, and there everything in turn excited his wonder. It was a fairyland for him. He said he was sure the world had improved more than twice as much in the forty-three years since he had seen it than in the twenty-three years he had lived before he was sentenced. He could scarcely believe his own senses when he was taken to see the moving pictures that "talked." His eyes opened in wonder as he talked to the warden at the penitentiary over the telephone. It seemed that the old man would never tire of seeing new objects. He stood for an hour watching the crowds on the sidewalks.

After eating the "first square meal he had had for forty-three years," it was with reluctance that he climbed on the first electric car he was ever on to take him back to Delaware, once his home, and where he was convicted of killing a man in a quarrel over a mouth harp.

Later Taborn will go to Cass county, Mich., where he lived as a boy, and he hopes to find some of his friends there. Eventually he intends to go to Hillsboro, N. C., where he has been promised work at his trade of machinist. He is also a shoemaker, but he will be unable to work much at this trade because of a deformed finger, due to an accident in prison.

Taborn leaves the penitentiary with a record for good behavior that is unequalled in prison history. During his entire confinement he was not once reported for breach of rules or misbehavior of any sort. He asked but one favor during his term, and that was during the only time he was outside the wall. Because of his age former Warden Warden Jones once took him to the prison farm, fifteen miles from Columbus, and he was there for three days. At the end of that time, though he was placed on his honor and allowed the freedom of the entire place, he asked to be taken back to the penitentiary, because "it seemed more like home, and it was too lonesome in the country." During his trips to and from the penitentiary he saw only a little of the outskirts of the city.

When he left the penitentiary finally he asked if he would be allowed to come back and live if he so desired. This is not allowable under the law. He was offered a pardon by Governor Harmon on condition that he go to the Soldiers' home in Dayton and stay there, but he declined. He served two years in the union army as a drummer boy during the civil war. He is still well preserved and his signt is as good as ever. He made many friends in prison, and as the confidant of prisoners he probably knows the "straight" story of many of them.

Because of his friendships in the prison and the fact that he will probably find it hard to become accustomed to new conditions, it is believed by the prison authorities that it will not be long before he will be back asking for a home there.

Can you imagine apple pie losing its popularity?

Did it ever occur to you that this standard, the standard that has been recognized for centuries of pie construction, is giving way to cherry and raspberry?

Well, it is, and this statement is made on no less authority than Jennie Ferris, who started baking pies seven years ago and who ought to know, as she subsists on the public appetite for pie and turns out enough of them in the course of each year to give every resident of Fort Wayne three-fourths of one, and have some left.

Pumpkin pie, with its golden filling and nut-brown coating, has from time immemorial had spasmodic periods of popularity. The periods were governed and limited in olden times to the few months between the first frost and the disappearance of the last pumpkin left in the storehouse, which varied naturally with the size of the crop; but commercialism has invaded the pumpkin field, just like it has all others, and luscious pies can be had fresh from the can most any time of the year.

However, Hallowe'en and Christmas are recognized generally as the extreme limits of the pumpkin pie schedule, because in the course of nature's handiwork the gourd-like fruit is at its best between these two holidays.

Forced Her Into It.

Handicapped by the loss of her right arm through an injury sustained in a wreck on the Santa Fe road thirty-one years ago, Jennie Ferris took up baking as a profession and after she had felt the public pulse through its stomach while she was engaged as pastry cook in hotels and restaurants, she decided that the medium of good bread and good pies could be made profitable and she launched her business.

She had $65 as her money capital, backed by courage, and just after she had put through a siege of ten weeks of idleness with a broken arm she invested her cash in material and started.

Bread was her long suit and she began making it in the back room of Clyde Bookwalter's tea store on West Main street, expecting that domestic consumption would keep her busy.

Had Learned the Knack.

Pies were a side line and at first only a few were baked each day, but she had a certain "knack" that tickled the public palate and she was forced to sacrifice in the course of a few months much of her bread-baking to the growing demand for pies.

There is little romance in the makeup of Jennie Ferris. There may have been some of it in her youth, because few girls ever pass through their 'teens without having a touch of it, but the workaday life has crushed it out and in its place is found the shrewd, calculating business woman.

Now her life is filled with bread and pies and seven days in each week she engineers the construction of an average of 125 pies and 175 loaves of bread.

Compared with the output of the large bakeries this is insignificant, but when you stop to consider that a woman thrown entirely on her own resources with only her wits and a small amount of money is making not only a living, but is laying up a competence through Fort Wayne's liking for pie, it is given importance in the commercial world.

No Story in Her.

"Shaw, there ain't a story in me and my pies. I had to make a living and I know how to make 'em, and that's all there is to it."

This is what she said when approached on the subject of posing for her picture and allowing others to be taken to give the public an insight into piemaking in an establishment that still retains that "homey" air associated with the better product of the great American stomach disturber.

However, she didn't stop to think that she had tackled an undertaking under conditions that would have deterred most women, even though they were inured to daily toil.

Piemaking is an art and the average housewife who can turn out flaky creations with just enough "shortening" to make them inviting and delectable is a jewel beyond compare and she can hasten a man along toward the period of wedding music and flowers and make him like his traveling.

Needs at Least Two Hands.

These housewives need at least two hands and most of them could use three or four to good advantage, as the dough has to be mixed and worked to a nicety and then it is rolled out smoothly, carefully adjusted to the pan for the bottom crust and then held aloft in one hand while with the other the edges are trimmed.

In the average home the pie is then gathered up carefully in the apron of the said housewife and conveyed to a hot oven, and when the baking process is through with, two hands per pie are generally necessary to remove them.

Jennie Ferris, in telling of her start, said:

"I just had my $65 and this one hand to go on. I'm not bragging much, but I have made some money in the business and I don't have a bit of trouble getting all the credit I want."

With her remaining hand she mixes the dough for pies, gets them in the pans, trims them to the right size, puts them in the oven and bakes them, and does it with a dexterity that is most remarkable. At first she did it all herself, but as her business grew she required more help and she has a number of assistants now, but she directs things generally and, to use her own words, "sees that things are just so."

Runs Into Big Figures.

An average of 125 pies a day means $75 a week and 45,500 a year, as the industry is one of the seven-day variety. This would furnish for each and every person found in the city limits when the last United States census was taken, three-fourths of a pie and would leave a balance.

Of course, this does not begin to satisfy the demand, as the bakeries turn out great quantities and the home variety is to be taken into consideration, but it's a big lot when you stop to think that one woman with only one arm inspects every one of them from the time it is started until it is sent to the customer.

Lena Plank is one of the assistants and Lena objects to facing a camera and no amount of persuasion could budge her. She was requested to stand near the pie oven over which she reigns supreme, but she flatly refused, but eventually compromised and agreed to stand with her back to the machine.

Just Knew She's Jump.

"Ah jes know 'm goin' to jump when you shoot off that pop gun. Ah jes matchully can't help it. Ah don't like them things at all, but you can take me here by mah stove."

This is what Aunt Marshy Tanner said when it came time to flash the bread stove over which she presides. Aunt Marshy takes to baking just as though she learned it in Dixieland in the days before the civil war, but she was born in the north and learned the art on this side of the Mason and Dixon line.

Mrs. Underwood took the matter philosophically and hit the staff photographer a verbal uppercut when it came her turn. "I don't care about it anyhow. Don't make any difference if they do put it in the paper; nobody can tell who you are, and what's the difference."

She is a piemaker and takes up her work after the dough is mixed, and is pretty nifty at it, too. Mrs. Ferris makes the crust, as that part of the pie determines its standing, but it has to be placed in the pans and made ready for the oven, and this devolves upon Mrs. Underwood, who don't believe newspaper photographers can make pictures that look like the subjects.

Raising Little Girl.

What of affection there is in Mrs. Ferris' nature centers about a child she has adopted. For a long time her life seemed lonely and selfish and needed something to round it out.

In Geneva Ferris she has found this and at seven years this little lady is attending school regularly and is being most comfortably provided for. She had just started for school and stopped to watch the picture-taking process and was caught by the camera.

Lots of people have eaten the Ferris pies and have enjoyed them, and some of them know of the struggles that the maker has encountered, but they don't know that the woman who supplies 182,000 "cuts" a year has sustained the loss of one of her arms and never let her misfortune master her.

TRANSFORMERS FOR UNCLE SAM

NICKEL PLATE HAS MORE LOSS BY FIRE

Car Repair Sheds at Stony Island Wiped Out by Flames.

The testing department of the Fort Wayne Electric works has been busy day and night for some time getting six massive transformers ready for shipment next Tuesday to Minadoka, Idaho, where the government has a big irrigation and power dam. Each of these transformers weighs 12,000 pounds and are so large that only three of them, with their appurtenances, can be carried on an ordinary car. The government is said to have a self-supporting plant at Minadoka. Besides furnishing water for irrigating a vast territory of farming and grazing lands, the water plant also furnishes power for generating electricity which is the only fuel the residents of that territory have, there eing no coal, wood or oil there. It is said that electrical current is sold very cheaply.

WABASH ANNUAL EARNINGS.

Last Fiscal Year Exceeded Its Predecessor $350,000.

Frederick A. Delano, president and receiver of the Wabash, has given out in advance of his annual report at the meeting of the stockholders and debenture bondholders of the company in Toledo, October 14, a statement of what that report will consist of. The fiscal year ended June 30, 1913, and after stating that the earnings during the year were $350,000 in excess of the actual fixed charges, President Delano commented as follows:

"A sum in excess of this surplus over actual charges has been appropriated for additions and betterments to property, so that for a year the final result will show a deficit of small proportions.

"Although gross revenues for the current year from July 1 to September 21 were $94,228 under those of the same period last year, we expect to show gross revenues for the full year equal to those of the 1913 fiscal year, which was by far the largest year's business the company has ever done. This expectation is held, moreover, after taking into consideration the effect of the rate reductions in the territory west of the River, which will cost the company approximately $250,000 to $300,000 in gross earnings, and which amount will have to come off the net as well.

"Plans for reorganizing the property are moving slowly but surely. All details are being cleaned up as far as it is possible to go at present. All the numerous requisite legal motions are being gone through, and headway is being made. The property is not yet fully equipped, although the proceeds of $14,000,000 receivers' certificates have been available. Further improvements will be needed and reorganization will logically provide for this. Last year the facilities of the company were increased about 10 per cent, but traffic increased 12 per cent."

SECOND VISIT BY FIRE.

Stony Island Shops of Nickel Plate Are Damaged.

The Nickel Plate has suffered a second loss by fire at the Stony Island shops. Several weeks ago the locomotive buildings, including the machine, the erecting and the boiler shops, were badly damaged by fire and at 9 o'clock last Wednesday night fire wiped out a good portion of the car repair department, which is located some distance from the locomotive repair shops. The buildings destroyed were mere shacks, many of them being old box cars, but they served the purpose for which they were being used and their destruction has put the car repair department in a bad way. They were located along what are known as the casting shop track, the carpenter, the blacksmiths and the painters tracks. In one of the little buildings was a machine which cost the company about $1,000 and it was completely ruined. Many of the tools used by the workmen were also destroyed or badly damaged. The origin of the fire is unknown.

FOUNDRYMEN'S ASSOCIATION.

Twelfth Meeting of the Society to Be Held in Chicago.

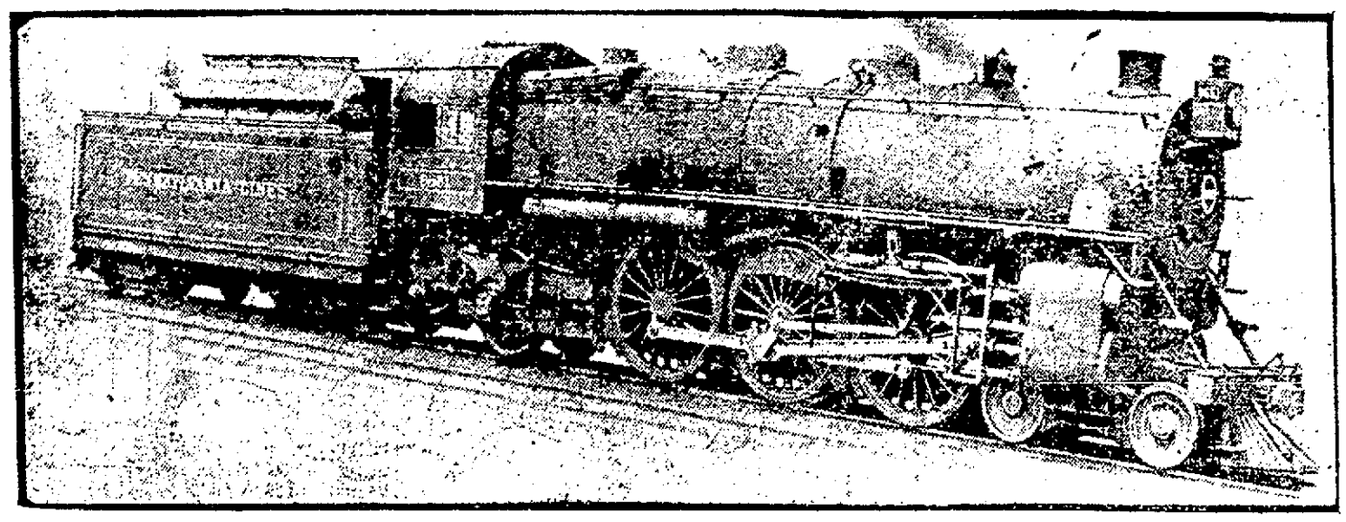
The American Foundrymen's association, which is composed of the representatives of the allied foundry interests—iron, steel, brass and aluminum—will hold its twelfth annual convention in Chicago October 13 to 17 inclusive. This is one of the most important of the industrial meetings of the year, because of the magnitude of the interests involved, and it will be the occasion for an assemblage of prominent foundrymen, supply manufacturers, dealers and others in the United States and Canada. E. A. Barnes, factory manager of the Fort Wayne Electric works, will attend the meeting. He is down on the program for a lecture and will read a paper on "The Efficiency Engineer of the Foundry." Mr. Barnes attended the three preceding conventions and read papers at each.

GOING TO CONVENTION.

Fort Wayne People to Attend Chattanooga Auxiliary.

The convention of the Ladies' Auxiliary to the B. R. T. convenes in Chattanooga next Monday and will continue in session about ten days. Many Fort Wayne people have planned to attend the meeting. Mrs. Cassie Clark, who has attended every convention and been grand lodge officer for thirteen years, will represent Auxiliary No. 436. She left today and will stop at Dayton and Cincinnati, to be joined at the latter place Sunday night by the following members of No. 436: Mr. and Mrs. Henry Webber and daughter, Miss Edith; Mr. and Mrs. Peter Collins, Mr. and Mrs. G. B. McCormick, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Baum, Mrs. D. Hays and daughter and Miss Margaret Morris. Loyal lodge, No. 85, will also send a delegation, but the personnel of the party could not be learned today. After the convention, the delegates and many of the visitors will make a trip to Florida.

THE 40,000TH ENGINE BUILT AT THE BALDWIN LOCOMOTIVE WORKS, NOW IN USE ON THE PENNSYLVANIA LINES.



The latest production in the way of passenger engine by the Baldwin Locomotive works is represented in the picture of Pennsylvania locomotive No. 8661 above. This was the 40,000th locomotive built by the Baldwin works and its picture and description is one of the chief features of the book entitled "Forty Thousandth Locomotive," just issued by the Baldwin company. This locomotive is not the first of its pattern built at the Baldwin works, for some of the same type are in use pulling the Pennsylvania limited, the Broadway limited and other fast trains, but it has all of the latest improvements in passenger locomotive construction and none better can be found in the land. This engine and its tender weigh 475,000 pounds; it has six driving wheels 80 inches in diameter; its cylinders are 26x26 inches; its piston valves are 10 inches in diameter; its boiler is of the straight Belpaire type and it carries a working pressure of 205 pounds; the heating surface of the firebox, tubes and arch tubes is 3680 square feet and added to this is the superheating surface of 845 square feet, and its truck wheels are 36 inches diameter in front and 56 inches back, with journals 6½x12 and 8x14 inches respectively. Its tender capacity is 8,000 gallons of water and 34,600 pounds of coal. The "Forty Thousandth Locomotive" also contains some interesting statistics illustrating the growth of the Baldwin Locomotive works. The works were established in 1832 and the output up to 1861—thirty years—was just 1,000. From the latter year to the present the increase in output increased rapidly. In 1880 locomotive 5,000 had been built and nine years later, in 1889, the output had reached the 10,000 point; in 1903 20,000 had been built; in 1907 the number reached 30,000 and in 1913 it passed 40,000. In addition to being equipped with a superheater No. 8661 has the Crawford underfeed type of stoker, developed by D. F. Crawford, formerly of Fort Wayne, the general superintendent of motive power of the Pennsylvania lines west of Pittsburg. At the close of the description of this locomotive, the "Forty Thousandth Locomotive" says: "This is a notable locomotive, because of the details of its design, and its large power generating capacity. Difficulty has at times been experienced in operating large locomotives because the necessary rate of firing could not be maintained with hand labor. This difficulty the locomotive under notice has been specially designed to overcome, and with the aid of such appliances as the superheater, brick arch and stoker, it is capable of developing power in proportion to its size and theoretical capacity."

WILL READ A PAPER.

E. A. Wagner to Tell How Transformers Are Made.

E. A. Wagner, head of the transformer department of the Fort Wayne Electric works, will attend a meeting of General Electric people at Pittsburg next week and will read a paper on "Construction of Transformers at Fort Wayne." He will leave for Pittsburg tomorrow.

PUTTING IN ANOTHER SIDING.

Carpenters and Bridge Foreman Danca, of the Wabash, is about to put in a track at the north side of the building recently moved from Calhoun and Grand streets to Harrison and Grand streets. This track will be a spur connecting with the main tracks near Kansas street and to protect it from land slides a concrete wall will be erected between it and the main track from a point near Webster street to Harrison street. It is not yet known what disposition will be made of the old freight building, but it is likely that some commission house will rent it. Before it was moved it was occupied by Wiener & Co.

GOING TO COLUMBIA CITY.

An Odd Fellow celebration at Columbia City this afternoon and this evening, in which the lodges of the five adjacent counties are sending delegates, will attract a number of employes of the Pennsylvania who are members of the order. Some who wanted to take part in the afternoon exercises were not able to do so on account of having to wait for the paymaster, but they will go to Columbia City this evening. Included in the party will be C. W. Grosvenor and A. E. Stewart, machinists.

DRAFTSMAN PROMOTED.

Otto Vaught, a draftsman, has been transferred from the Pennsylvania machine shop to the east car shops, which is a good promotion for him. The young man succeeds Raymond Bracht, who has resigned to take a position with an electrical concern in Marion, Ind. Mr. Bracht is a son of Chief Engineer William Bracht, of the Fort Wayne Electric works, and a grandson of Joseph Bracht, the veteran Nickel Plate engineer.

FRANK LULEY VERY SICK.

Frank J. Luley, aged eighty-five years, a retired patternmaker, is very ill at his home and there is little prospect of an improvement in his condition. Mr. Luley commenced work as a patternmaker with the Bass works when it was a little concern located west of Lafayette street, on ground now occupied by the Pennsylvania shops. He retired five or six years ago on account of the infirmities of age.

TOOK TO THE WOODS.

Chief Dispatcher E. M. Reese and Dispatcher W. E. Teeters, of the Pennsylvania, are en route to the forests of northern Minnesota, where they will get as far away from railroads as possible and never think of them again until the time of departure for home arrives. They are provided with guns and all kinds of fishing tackle and mean to rough it.

BOB LYONS IN HOSPITAL.

Robert J. Lyons, assistant road foreman of engines of the Pennsylvania, whose illness was mentioned in these columns a few days ago, is worse and has gone to the Lutheran hospital for treatment. He suffers from an affection of the face and head which is most painful and which refuses to yield to ordinary treatment.

DERAILMENT BLOCKS TRACKS.

The derailment of a freight engine at Danville, Ill., early this morning, blocked the Wabash several hours and delayed trains. No. 28, eastbound, had to take a detour and came into Fort Wayne two hours and thirty minutes late. Nobody was hurt and the damage was not very great.

STORING COAL IN YARDS.

The Nickel Plate has established a new coal storage ground just west of the L. E. & W. tracks, on the north side of the main tracks of the Nickel Plate. Coal for winter use is being stored there rapidly. The old storage site near the round house is being abandoned as rapidly as possible on account of fire, which has been in the pile of coal there many months.

MORE SIGNAL PROTECTED TRACKS.

The Nickel Plate has had a gang of men at work for several weeks preparing the line between Fort Wayne and Edgerton for block signals and will soon put the system in operation. The road has been thus equipped from Fort Wayne to the Illinois state line and with the completion of the system to Edgerton, the entire line in Indiana will be protected by this superb system.

AUXILIARY DANCE AT UNITY.

Friendship division, No. 18, Grand International Auxiliary to the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers, No. 12, is engaged in arrangements for a public dance at Unity hall on Wednesday evening, Oct. 8. These are always most pleasant events and the public is aware of that fact and turns out liberally. All are invited.

ENGINEER JOHNS HURT.

Robert Johns, engineer on the Nickel Plate and non-partisan candidate for councilman in the Fifth ward, is temporarily crippled. Thursday, while at work, he dropped a clinker hook on his right foot and crushed the great toe.

PROMOTED AND TRANSFERRED.

W. S. Snyder, for some years a car repairman in the Nickel Plate yards, has been promoted to car inspector and transferred to Green Springs, Ohio. He has taken his wife and two children there to reside.

TWO BONES OF FOOT BROKEN.

S. R. Matthewson, who operates a cutting-up machine at the Bass blacksmith shop, is at Hope hospital with a badly injured foot. Yesterday a heavy piece of metal fell upon the member and broke two of the bones and bruised the flesh badly. Mr. Matthewson is single.

MOVING TO STONY ISLAND.

Conductor A. B. Dent, of the Nickel Plate, who was recently assigned a local freight run between Stony Island and Knox, will make the former place his headquarters and is moving his household goods and family there. Mrs. Dent went to that place last night.

NICKEL PLATE PAY DAY.

The Nickel Plate paymaster will make his semi-monthly pay day trip over the Chicago division next Wednesday and over the Fort Wayne division on Thursday.

TURNED OUT THIRTEEN ENGINES.

The output of heavy repaired engines from the Pennsylvania erecting shops during the week ending today included the following: Nos. 9101, 7482, 7631, 9093, 9904, 7516, 7060, 7121, 7497, 9046, 9261, 9933 and 9969.

SOUSE PARTY LED TO THE BRUISING

Beer Drinking and an Old Score Made Ben Moore Beat Wife.

NEWS OF THE POLICE

A souse party that started in saloons and wound up at his home, was the cause of a melee in which Ben Moore so badly beat up his wife that she was in bed for a week. For the offense he was fined $1 and costs in the city court by Frank H. Kleekamp, sitting as special judge, change of venue having been taken from Judge Mungovan. Moore and his wife and some of their friends went out two weeks ago tonight and drank until the saloons closed and turned them out. Then the party went to the Moore home for luncheon and additional beer. Mrs. Moore's testimony was that trouble began when her husband attempted familiarities with one of the lady guests. Then old scores were revived and the upshot of it, as nearly as conflicting testimony could disclose, was a fight in which Mrs. Moore got not only the worst, but all of the consequences. Some of the testimony was filthy, much to the joy of the railbirds, whose degenerate minds have had nothing of that sort to feed on in police court for a long time.

Diamond Peddler Off Easy.

Abe Hamburg, the man who was arrested on suspicion of being crooked because he was selling diamonds at bargain prices, entered a plea of guilty to loitering in the city court and paid $1 and costs and promised to leave the city at once. He admits being arrested in many cities because he was suspected of being a diamond thief and declares his diamonds are worth no more than the prices he asks for them. Police inquiries in several cities have brought replies that Hamburg is know there, but so far nothing has been found against him.

Hays Sentenced for Larceny.

George Hays made the plea that he was so drunk he did not know what he was doing and then put in a new line of testimony to the positive effect that he knew he did not rob Noah Brandt, night janitor at the interurban terminal station. His two stories dovetailed so nicely that their joint consequence was to get him forty days in jail. Hays lives in Garrett, he says, and came here Wednesday, put himself through a rapid pickling process and by daylight next morning was down and out. A coupon pass book on the city car lines was found in his pockets and it bore the name of Noah Brandt. He was booked under that name and thought well enough of the new moniker to let it stick. He was loafing around the traction terminal and frisked Brandt's coat for the coupon book and a pair of gold-rimmed glasses. The glasses cannot be found. When returned from jail to police court yesterday the police found a hacksaw in his clothing.

Walked in from Chi; Will Remain.

John Ziegler, who has been on this side but fifteen months and can speak little English, was very drunk and very attentive to ladies who passed on Calhoun street near the subway. Officer Madden arrested him. Ziegler said he had walked from Montpelier, Ohio, to Chicago, looking for work, which kept just ahead of him, and then he shifted his gait into the high, wound up his pedometer and did a rapid hike to Fort Wayne, in his still vain pursuit of a job. His diligence looking for work didn't interfere the least with his cultivation and management of a souse that has him pretty well shot to pieces. His case was continued until Tuesday for investigation.

Lem Smith is Held.

Lem A. Smith, arrested in Newark, Ohio, and brought back here by Detective Sergeant Ward Hall, will have a hearing on the charge of grand larceny pending against him next Tuesday. Meanwhile he is in jail in default of a bond for $500. Smith protests that he did not steal $25 and a diamond ring worth $125 from his employer, Rankin Mauger, a fish dealer on Holman street. The case has some angles that the police will go into.

Other City Court Cases.

William Moor, who ran away from the county poor farm, where he had been employed, was arraigned on a petit larceny charge, which almost fell down. The case was continued indefinitely and Superintendent Johnston took Moor back to the infirmary. It was said that Moor had packed a pair of suit cases with apparel that did not belong to him and came to town. Plainclothesmen Junk and Fry got him after a diligent search. It developed that he also had taken a watch of the probable value of less than a dollar.

John Hopkins, a drunk, who had not been out of jail long enough to quit blinking at the sunshine, was in again this morning and wet over for eleven days.

William Grieber blew in on a Nickel Plate blind baggage and freighted a souse in with himself. He tried to tell Special Officer Thompson what a railway policeman could do and what not. In the city court he was less positive in his opinions. He begged to be let go and was.

Richard Greeno, arrested for vagrancy and held for several days to investigate his operatings in wiring under different names to Nashville, Tenn., for money, was given an hour to leave the city and said he could make it in that time.

NEGRO CHARGED WITH A FORGERY

FRAUD IS ALLEGED

Raymond W. Welch, a negro cook employed at the Wayne hotel for the last three years, was arrested Friday night by Deputy United States Marshal Amos R. Walter, on an affidavit filed in the district court charging him with forgery, in an attempt to defraud the government, and alleging that he signed the name of J. W. Hightower to an affidavit for a pension claim for army services and swore to the signature before a notary public in Chicago in October, 1912.

It is charged that Welch wanted to secure a pension, and that the name of Hightower was affixed to his claim without Hightower's knowledge. Welch was questioned last night by United States Commissioner Thomas J. Logan, at the local federal building, and declared that he went to a notary public, making the statement that Hightower was ill and unable to come himself. It is charged that after the notary had affixed the seal of office on the claim, Welch signed Hightower's name to the document.

Welch furnished bond in the sum of $500 and his hearing is set for Thursday, October 9, before Mr. Logan and District Attorney C. W. Miller, of Indianapolis, who has been notified of the arrest. In the meantime authorities are looking for Hightower, whose whereabouts at this time are unknown.

J. C. Peters, proprietor of the Wayne hotel, where Welch is employed, says that the man has always been honest and a good worker.

According to a report issued by the American bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, based on a study of seventeen industries in the United States and Great Britain, it requires 18 per cent more power and two and one-half times more labor to do the same work, in the industries examined, in Great Britain than it does in the United States.

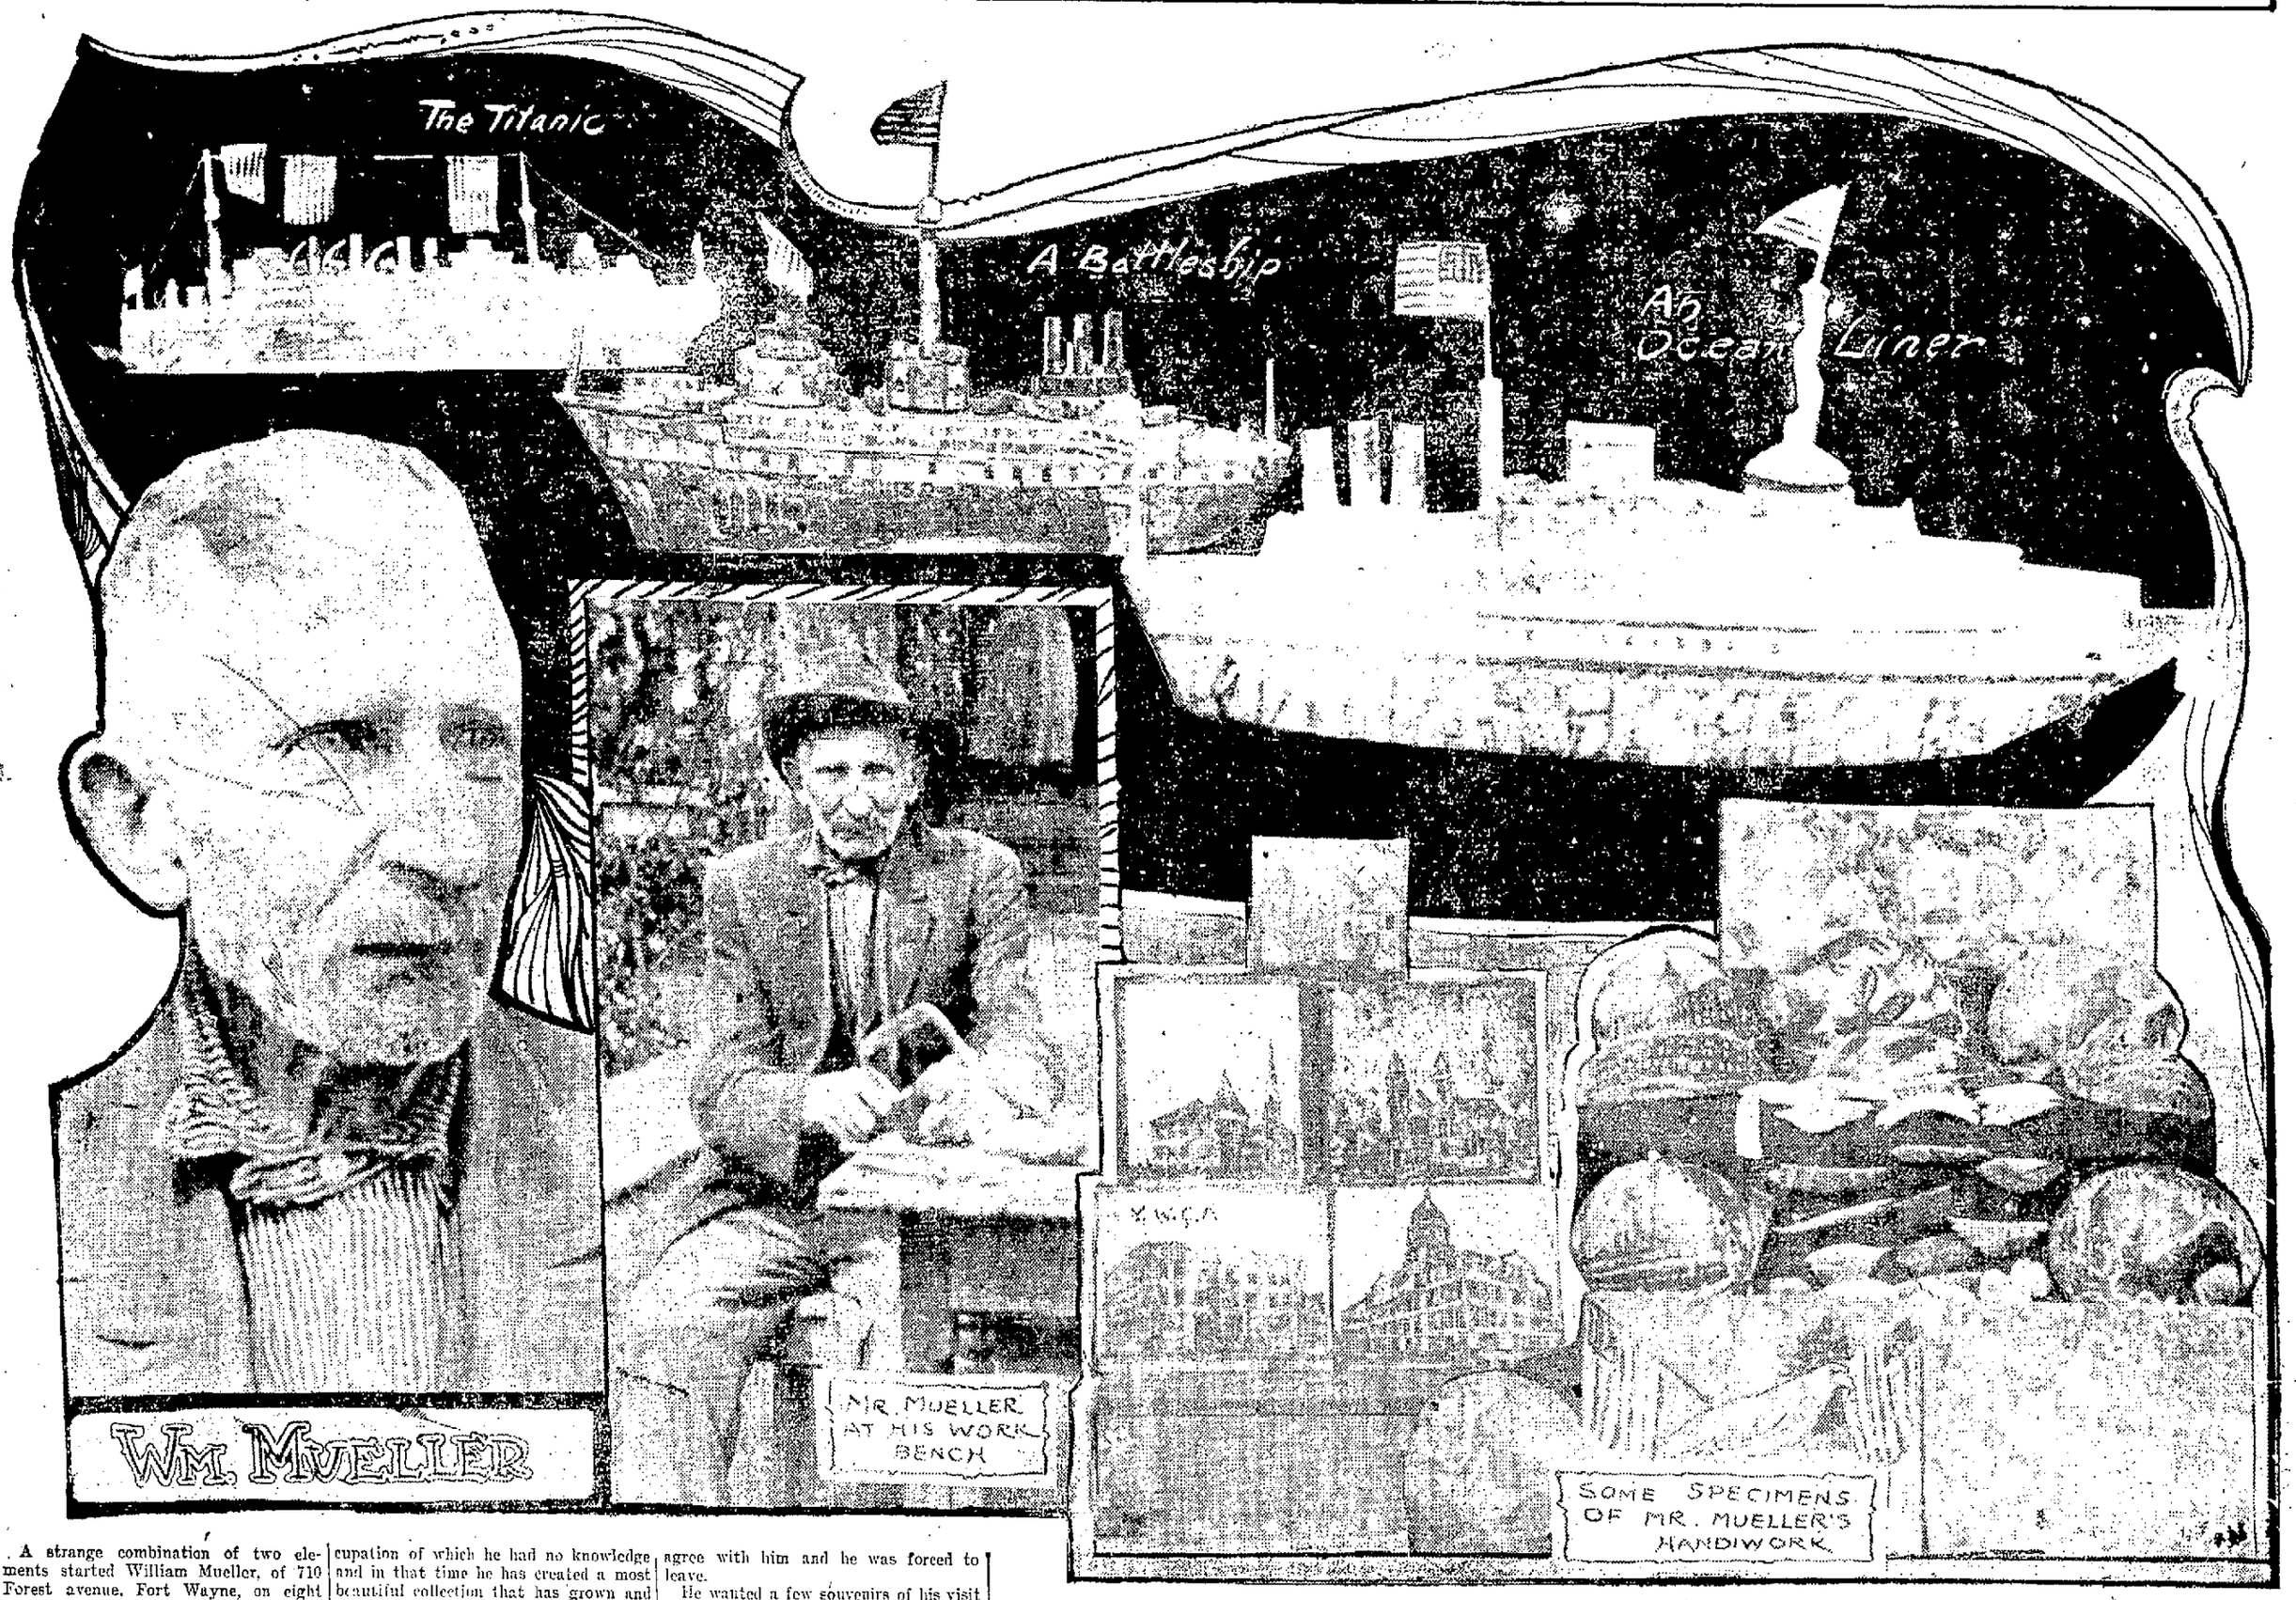
Fort Wayne Man Attributes Fact He is Alive Today to Queer Occupation of Working With Sea Shells



A strange combination of two elements started William Mueller, of 710 Forest avenue, Fort Wayne, on eight years of tedious and trying occupation of shell art work.

In the first place a dealer in Los Angeles asked him $6 for a small jewel box and he thought the price excessive.

Then a combined attack of asthma and rheumatism made it impossible for him to follow his regular occupation of landscape gardening and to use his own expression, "I would have been dead long ago if it hadn't been for this work."

At 70 years of age Mr. Mueller has just rounded out eight years at an occupation of which he had no knowledge and in that time he has created a most beautiful collection that has grown and grown and grown under his constant labor until there are now more than 2,000 pieces and each one of them is one of great merit.

Four Weeks on a Flag.

Just as an example of the tedious labor required in his art, it took him four weeks to make one flag that is shown in the accompanying illustrations and is part of the equipment of the big model ocean liner that is the pride of his collection.

A few years ago Mr. Mueller went to Los Angeles and expected to make his home there, but the climate did not agree with him and he was forced to leave.

He wanted a few souvenirs of his visit and among them he thought he would have the little shell box that the dealer made such an exorbitant demand for.

After a few questions he ascertained that divers living in the Santa Catalina islands collected the shells and sold them at 25 cents each. He also learned that they use boats with glass bottoms through which they are able to locate the shells, and he gave his order for 500 of them and had them shipped in two barrels to Fort Wayne.

There are some of these still on hand, but the supply has been augmented by others taken from the bed of St. Joseph's river and he has found that they are very valuable as an adjunct to the ocean variety. Most all of the white parts shown in the big pieces are from shells gathered here.

In the Long Watches of the Night.

This aged man has spent night after night under a coaloil lamp beside the kitchen stove at his home, working tirelessly at his self-imposed task, while his body was racked with pain and at times when he could hardly breathe.

These long vigils have been part and parcel of his hard battle with grim death. If he had faltered, if he had left his brain open to be invaded and destroyed by the thought of his constant suffering his spirit would undoubtedly have been broken and he would have given up in his struggle for existence.

These little shells have peopled the dark hours of the night for the old man. He has talked to them and they have responded, and in rounding out his long years here on earth he has grown fond of them and this has evolved a skill that is most remarkable.

Did Not Recognize the Value.

As he built his ships, made his flags, designed his buildings, made his little trinkets and turned his hand to the things that suggested themselves to his busy brain, he grew to love his work and his creations became part of himself and no great master ever put more of his heart and soul into a masterpiece than this man put into his art.

Thethought of offering them in the market did not occur to him until his stock of money ran short and then he discovered that his patience had placed in his possession a source of revenue from which he can expect to realize handsomely, as the work is of great merit and none of it is duplicated in the world.

Made Trinkets at First.

At first Mr. Mueller devoted his attention to small trinkets and was satisfied with them, but he saw greater possibilities and he persevered until he advanced from a tyro to a leader in his work and this perseverance has been rewarded by creations that no others have attempted.

Takes Great Pride.

Just ask Mr. Mueller to show you his collection and, although it is most difficult at times for him to move about, he is like a boy with a new toy. To visitors he will go into the greatest detail about his work and will give the history of each and every one of his pieces with a relish that plainly shows his love for them.

In eight years he has been in the central part of Fort Wayne just twice. During those visits he made mental notes of the big buildings and then he set about the task of reproducing them in shells. The court house, the Y. W. C. A. building and a number of others are shown in the illustrations, and when it is remembered that each little piece of these reproductions has been carved separately and inlaid most carefully the immense amount of work they entailed can be understood.

Made His Own Tools.

One of the greatest difficulties Mr. Mueller encountered at the outset was his inability to get tools adapted to his peculiar line of work. He had to have saws that would cut the shells without chipping the edges; he had to have the smallest kind of drills, screwdrivers and chisels, and the task of making them was forced upon him.

After a number of experiments he picked up one of the wires used for stringing pianos and found that it was admirably fitted for grinding off the rough edges of the pieces in the course of construction.

About the same time he found that pieces of watch springs converted into saws were just what he wanted, so he has made hundreds of them in his long experience and most everything he uses has been invented and fashioned by himself.

When the weather permits Mr. Mueller does his work in the yard; in inclement weather he is driven to the barn, where he has a work bench, and in the winter he sits beside the kitchen stove. While has has not kept strict account of the time taken in finishing each of the big articles he has made, Mr. Mueller made a record that shows he was employed just four months and two weeks on the big ocean steamer he has reproduced.

Is His Own Teacher.

Before his visit to California Mr. Mueller had never thought of doing any work of the kind in which he is spending his time now. He had been a landscape gardener, but there was nothing in this to suggest his present occupation and there had been no part of his old duties that gave him the least bit of experience for his entry into a new field.

There was latent talent and it developed with time and patience, and there is probably no man or woman alive who can do the things that he can do, because it requires application that few would devote to any vocation.

Colors Appeal to Him.

"Look, just look. See the beautiful colors. Hold it up to the light. You can see right through it. Is it not beautiful? That little flag is one of my pets. I worked and worked on that and I ground the pieces down until they were so thin I was afraid they would break.

"Then I put them together and look what I have. I don't think anybody ever made one like that. I give away little bits now and then to visitors, but I have not been able to get out and sell my work and, to tell the plain truth, I hate to part with it."

There is something of the old master about this man. As gentle as a child in his manner, his broken English and his devotion to his comparatively new task make him a delightful companion. Artistic temperament that was born in him and that has lain dormant for three score years and more has been awakened and has found its outlet through a channel that has tried the man's patience beyond the endurance of any but a true artist.

Worked at Winona Lake.

People who have cottages at Winona Lake will probably recall Mr. Mueller as the man who laid out the grounds there and planned all of the landscape work. He has been a resident of Fort Wayne for twenty-one years and for eight years of that time he was landscape gardener at the Indiana school.

He gave this up to accept employment with the Fort Wayne Gas company and was employed at the Poneto station in the days of natural gas. With advancing age his ailments forced him to give up active outdoor work and he had to turn his hand to things less arduous.

In casting about for an occupation the shells came into his life and for eight years they have been his very existence. None of the members of his family live in Fort Wayne. His wife and children, or most of the children at least, are in the west.

This separation has robbed him of the comfort of home ties in his declining years and he is deprived of the privilege of watching the lengthening shadows from the shelter of his own roof and he has no hearthstone whereupon he can rest and wait for the call.

Is there any wonder then that these beautiful shells came into his life and appealed to him?

Is there any wonder that they have taken the places of wife, children and friends?

Says Money, Not Brains, Enabled U. S. to Build Canal Instead of French.

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 4.—"Do you think that if the French had had the modern equipment made possible by recent invention which has been such a tremendous advantage to Americans, that they would have been successful in building the Panama canal twenty-five years ago?"

Philippe Bunau-Varilla, a Frenchman, one of the world's greatest civil engineers, who first dreamed of a Panama canal, and was chief engineer for the old De Lesseps Canal company, the French concern that first undertook the building of a "big ditch" across the isthmus, answered:

"It was not a question of facilities, but of finances," he said, "that prevented the completion of the Panama canal by the French. We ran out of money. We removed 78,000,000 cubic yards of dirt and had only 40,000,000 to dig to complete the ditch when the De Lesseps company blew up.

"Another fallacy that the world labors under is that the French government was behind the Panama project. It was not. Private capital financed the venture; the company was not even subsidized by the government of France."

Bunau-Varilla is on his way to see the water turned into the Pacific side of the canal by Colonel Goethals on October 9.

"That day will be my triumph. It marks the realization of my dream—a canal across the isthmus.

Bunau-Varilla did something more than throw 78,000,000 cubic wards of dirt out of the big ditch. He stage-managed the Colombian revolution and created the Republic of Panama all in three days and the only life lost was that of a Chinaman who strolled in the way of one of the three cannon balls fired during the war.

"Remarkable as is the work, gigantic as was the undertaking, still the present Panama canals is only temporary," continued Bunau-Varilla. "The canal is too perfect. It should have been built cheaper, for it is bound to become obsolete in a short time, because it is the lock type.

"The ultimate canal must be sea level without locks. It will be 500 feet wide at the bottom, 600 feet at the water line and 45 feet deep at the lowest tide. This will reduce the canal current to three knots an hour. With the water in the ditch, dredgers, scows and barges, ten years will be sufficient to enlarge the canal. It will be necessary to remove 600,000,000 cubic yards of earth.

"The Americans built the canal over the exact route mapped out by the French in the 80's. Thirty million cubic yards of the old French ditch were used. They met no engineering problems that were not solved by us before them."

FINAL WORK FOR THE FIRST GAME

Coach Has Not Decided Which of Friar Squad Will Play.

A LOT OF MATERIAL

Until he has had a final look at the practice squad in the workout billed for League park this afternoon, Coach Louis Ward will not be able to pick his team for the opening game between the Friars and the Congerville eleven here tomorrow as there are a few important positions to be filled and the director of the club has not been able to decide on his men.

From the preliminary work he is led to believe that he can pick a team fully as strong as that of last season, and when he has whipped his club into shape he is of opinion that it will make a better showing than the Friar outfit of last year.

Hutzell, who has not been with the squad for a number of years, and who was a terror in the attack when he was in the line-up, will be back in the game, and Doc Rosenbaum, who played at Pittsburg, is also counted upon to fill one of the places in the line-up. Charley Pask will play at quarter and Strieder has announced he will be out for practice, which means that he will probably be in the team.

These men with Captain Dennison and Al Gessler are booked as certainties and the prospect for a fast team is excellent. Muncie has a decided advantage in the fact that it has been in the field for the last two weeks, having opened the season in a game against the Wabash A. A. team.

The opposition carries eighteen men and in the number is "Dutch" Knecht, a college player who is accounted one of the fast men of independent circles. The kickoff will be promptly at 2:30 o'clock.

JOE JACKSON THIRD

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Joe Jackson dropped to third place among American league batters this week. Cobb still leads but the Cleveland slugger must have found the pace too swift, for Olaf Henriksen, of Boston, back in the game once more, crowded into second place close on the heels of the Detroit man. Their unofficial averages are:

Cobb, .391; Henriksen, .385; Jackson, .367; Speaker of Boston, is in fourth place with .364. The rest of the men hitting .300 or better are: Collins, Philadelphia, .340; Baker, Philadelphia, .339; Gilhooley, New York, .337; Lajoie, Cleveland, .337; McInnis, Philadelphia, .315; Lellvelt, Cleveland, .314; Crawford, Detroit, .314; Bauman, Detroit, .303; Stovall, St. Louis, .303.

Milan, Washington, and Mueller, Washington, are still one-two among the base stealers, the former with 68 and the latter with 59.

Walter Johnson tops the pitchers in games won and lost. The first five rank:

The unofficial averages of the other players batting .300 and over are:

MAISEL MAKING GOOD.

Three Men from Minors Elevated by Draft to the Teams in the Major Leagues.

(Special Correspondence.)

San Francisco, Oct. 4.—Here are three players from the Pacific coast league who were elevated by draft to the majors for next season.

Last year an offer of $12,500 was made for Johnnie Williams, the speedy little pitcher with Sacramento, who goes to Detroit. Captain Wolverton, who formerly held down Frank Chance's berth with the New York Americans, turned it down because he wanted to trade a player.

Hosp has been up before. He was drafted for the St. Louis Americans in 1911 but hurt his arm just before the opening of the 1912 season. At that time Hosp was a pitcher. On account of his tremendous hitting ability he was put in the infield as soon as his arm recovered and he speedily developed into one of the best shortstops in the game. He is a wonderful all around man.

Howard, of the Los Angeles club, goes to the Detroit team. He is a cracking good all around man.

RICKEY DOES NO WORK ON SUNDAY

New St. Louis Manager is Something New in the Big Show.

HAS ENTIRE CONTROL

Detroit, Mich., Oct. 4.—Branch Rickey did not come to Detroit with the Browns last Sunday. Branch refuses to manage a team from the bench or from the grandstand on the Sabbath day. He does not drink, smoke, chew or use profanity. He is a wonderful exception as a baseball manager.

Rickey must stand or fall by his own judgment in St. Louis. Robert L. Hedges, owner of the Browns, has the reputation of persistent meddling. The baseball knowledge displayed by Hedges never gave him a high standing among owners, but he has the reputation of diving into any situation and Rickey is reported to be the first manager the Browns have had since Hedges got the controlling interest in issuing orders on his own judgment. The successive failures of McAleer, Wallace and Stovall has been attributed to interference by Hedges, and constant "crossing" of the judgment of his managers.

But Rickey is said to be above and beyond interference from Hedges, the club having made him absolute master of the situation. Rickey is boss of the Browns, according to general opinion in St. Louis, and recent happenings have proven that Hedges has finally decided to put a team in full charge of its manager.

When Hedges returned from Florida he was asked why Alexander, the catcher, had been sent to Oakland. Hedges was surprised that Alexander had been sent to the coast. He always considered Alexander a brainy catcher and the next best on his club in years, but he said nothing to Rickey. Neither has he interfered with Rickey on any other transactions Branch has made since becoming chief of the Browns.

COACHING CAN BE MADE TO PAY.

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 4.—Walter Reinschild, the former Michigan star, has been engaged to coach Throop college, Pasadena, at the highest salary ever paid a football instructor in southern California. Reinschild will get $40 for every afternoon he puts in with the eleven.

Reinschild has had a successful career as a coach on the coast. He coached Washington State college into a tie for the championship of the northwest and since then has handled the St. Vincent school in Los Angeles, turning out one of the finest football machines seen on the coast.

COMPARES STARS WITH OLD SQUAD

Mr. Sunday Says They Were as Good in 80's as Those of Today.

WAS GREAT SPRINTER

(By Rev. William A. Sunday.)

Copyright, 1913, by the Newspaper Enterprise Association.

The world's series will be a great exhibition of baseball, but it won't be any more interesting or exciting than the series of the 80's between the National league and American association winners!

They say the game is faster than when I played, but you'll have to show me. They say it is more scientific. Maybe, but it wasn't quite so rough and ready as some fans think.

In the series this year will be Baker, Collins, Oldring, McInnes, Murphy, Herzog, Burns, McCormick, Merkle, Meyers—all great batters, but how about Brouthers, Thompson, Roger Connor, Richardson, Kelley, Ewing, Comiskey, Anson, Ryan, Dalrymple, O'Neill, Stovey, Welch and Browning?

You read about the speed of Collins, Snodgrass, Merkle, McInnes and Herzog. Could they outsprint Latham, Pfeffer, Stovey, Hamilton and, I may add, Billy Sunday?

(Editor's note—Sunday, the fastest man who ever played in the National league. He was timed 100 yards in 10 1-5 seconds, and his race with Latham was a hollow victory. Sunday was once timed 300 yards in 31 seconds flat).

I have read much of the scoring from second on an infield out by speed merchants like Ty Cobb and Joe Jackson and of the hit and run play as proving baseball is faster today.

We did these things, too, but we had no names for them. I scored twice from second on infield outs in one series. The first time King Kelley signaled that he'd hit the next ball and I started with the pitcher's motion, sliding around the catcher as the ball was relayed from first, where "Kel" had been retired.

Great speed and perfect timing are necessary to score from second, but only the cleanest fielding can prevent a good sprinter turning the trick.

Jake Daubert, Chase and Konetchy are the best first basemen today, but I never saw the man who had a thing on Captain Anson. I have seen him take throws from Ed Williamson, bare handed—and, man, how Williamson could hop that ball across from the short field! As for fielding, how much better are these chaps than Charlie Comiskey?

What pitcher today is better than John Clarkson, the only man who ever threw an overhand raise ball; than McCormick, than Jim Keefe, with his marvelous change of pace; than Mickey Welch, than Radbourne, or Amos Rousie, the greatest of them all? When Amos Rousie was right his fast ball looked like a streak of dust.

Compare Chief Meyers, Lapp, Wilson and Schang to the greatest backstop that ever lived—"Silver" Flint or to "Buck" Ewing or Charlie Bennett, and tell me the answer!

Eddie Collins is a great second baseman but when I think of Fred Pfeffer, who forced the rule makers to write section 8 of rule 51, which declares the batter out if he bat an infield fly, with first and second occupied, because of his deadly trapping, I enjoy a chuckle.

There have been Baker, Bradley, Collins, Herzog—all great third basemen—but not one of them compared with Billy Nash or Denny.

Ed Williamson, despite his size and weight, was the fastest shortstop I ever saw. His fielding and ability to throw with terrific speed from any position was simply marvelous—and he played with bare hands, remember!

And are Barry and Fletcher better than Jack Glasscock or Herman Long?

The great batters—Cobb, Jackson, Wagner, Daubert, Lajoie, McDonald, Speaker—what have they on Ed Delehanty, Sam Thompson, Ed Williamson, Tip O'Neill, Mike Tiernan, Captain Anson, Browning, Ewing, Brouthers, Richardson or, the greatest of them all, Mike Kelley, whose ability to foul off the ball forced the foul strike rule?

I have seen Kelley foul off a dozen balls at one turn at bat and drive Ferguson, of the Phillies, from the box, saying things you can't print—and wouldn't want to!

Recently, against Walter Johnson, the Athletics laid down bunt after bunt—seven, I believe. Johnson got the first six, but on the seventh went up in the air and the Athletics took the bacon—it was just the same thing Kelley did—under a different rule.

The only advance I see is the improvement in team work. We had signals. The batter tipped the runner and the catcher tipped the batsman when he would throw. The signal system may not have been so perfect, but it got results.

There are more stars today, but not greater ones than in the day of the series between the National league and American association.

PRESIDENT TAKES VACATION.

VETERANS HITCH IN BIG COMBATS

Most of the Giants and Athletics Hooked up in 1911 Bout.

THE STORY IN FIGURES

New York, Oct. 4.—Veterans of the memorable struggle between the Giants and Athletics for the world's championship in 1911—which the Athletics won by four games to two—will form the backbone of the two teams when they face each other again in a world's series on the afternoon of Oct. 7.

Of the fourteen Athletics who went on the diamond in the world's series games of 1911 thirteen are in the list of twenty-five which Connie Mack has prepared as eligible for the forthcoming games. Lord is the only man who played in 1911 who will not play on Philadelphia's team this year. Twelve of the fifteen players who fought for New York in 1911 will fight for it again in 1913. The absentees are Ames and Devore, traded to Cincinnati, and Becker, released. The world's series of 1913 will, therefore, be in large measure, a contest between the same men who engaged in the series of 1911.

What these men did in 1911, their past performances in the six games of that series, are of unusual significance and bearing on the present contest.

The first game of the series of 1911 was played Oct. 14 on the Polo grounds, scene of this year's encounter, before a crowd the like of which had never seen a baseball game before. There were 38,281 paid spectators. The day was brilliant, with the tang of autumn in the air. When the New York players trotted out onto the field in their black uniforms, with a touch of white here and there, they were greeted with a roar of welcome such as had never arisen in a ball park before. The Athletics, clad in their customary grayish red traveling uniforms, were welcomed almost as warmly.

On a diamond, sleeked and groomed to perfection, the two teams played a 2 to 1 game, New York scoring the winning run in the seventh inning when Meyers clouted the ball to left field for two bases and scored on Devore's two-bagger. Mathewson and Bender were the opposing pitchers.

The second game was played at Philadelphia Oct. 16. Marquard took the slab for the Giants; Plank for the Athletics. Crandall supplanted Marquard in the eighth inning after John Franklin Baker had lifted one of Marquard's curves in the seventh over the right field fence for a home run, breaking the tie. Plank was easily master of the New York batters and the game was Philadelphia's 3 to 1.

Philadelphia won the third game also, played in New York the following day, by a score of 3 to 2. This duel of pitchers—Mathewson and Coombs—lasted seven innings. Philadelphia came from behind in the ninth on the second home run of the series to be batted out by Baker. The run tied the score. In the eleventh inning Baker scored the winning run.

With Philadelphia twice winner out of three games, the series was interrupted by continued rainfall for a week. On Oct. 24 the fourth game was played at Philadelphia. Mathewson pitched again for the Giants, Bender for the Athletics. The Athletics won, 4 to 2, and needed but one more game to clinch the title of world's champions.

Marquard and Coombs were the opposing pitchers in the fifth game, played in New York the following day, Oct. 25. The attendance fell off nearly 5,000, reflecting the sentiment that the Giants were doomed to defeat. But, contrary to the wiseacres, New York won, after a ten-inning battle, by 4 to 3.

The sixth and last game was played in Philadelphia Oct. 26. Philadelphia took the snap out of the Giants' vigorous opening and won by the lopsided score of 13 to 2. Ames, Wiltse, Marquard and Crandall sought in vain to break up the Athletics' batting bee. Before Bender's curves the Giants were practically powerless.

The composite score of the six games—played by practically the same men who will decide the fate of the championship flag this year—reads as follows:

M'GRAW HAS WONDERFUL LIKING FOR THAT LETTER M.

What a curious figure the letter "M"—just the harmless, wide pronged, grinning "M"—has played in the history and glory of John J. McGraw! And let me tell you, John J. is some superstitious about that letter "M"—if you don't believe it, ask him and also, look how the "Ms" have figured in his bright career. John M., himself, places implicit reliance on the "M" batteries of Mathewson and Myers or Marquard and Meyers. When Meyers was hurt this summer what catcher did John rush forth and grab instead of trusting to his un-md reserves? McLean! On first for the New York team stands Merkle, in right is Murray. McCormick is the big pinch hitter. Murphy was John's pet groundkeeper. Murphy, too, it was—Danny Murphy—who caught the fly in 1911 that let in the winning run for the Giants in their last victory, their second triumph of the big series. Mathewson and McGinnity were the pitchers who starred for McGraw in 1903 and 1904. McGann played first and Mertes in the field. After McGinnity went upon his way, Marquard replaced him as Mathewson's winning partner. The "M" stuff held good on many an occasion, but against the Athletics it is rather unreliable—because it has to bump against the luck of another "M"—Cornelius Mack! Also McInnes, Murphys (two of 'em)—quite a combination.

MILWAUKEE CLUB FIRST TO WIN A PENNANT FOR WOMAN OWNER.

MRS. AGNES HAVENOP

For the first time in history, a woman has won a baseball championship.

The woman is Mrs. Agnes Havenor, owner of the Milwaukee club of the American association.

Since the death of her husband Mrs. Havenor, one of the two women club owners in baseball, has been singularly fortunate from the baseball angle of vision.

Her team has won a pennant in the fastest minor league in the country after a nervous finish with those ancients, the Millers, headed by Joe Cantillon, chasing them across the line.

Mrs. Havenor has done other things to add to the treasury reserve since she was widowed. Last year she sold Ray Schalk, who is now the first-string White Sox catcher, for something like $15,000; "Nemo" Leibold, the midget phenom, was sold to the Cleveland club for a fancy price, while this year the White Sox paid $75,000 in cash and players for Larry Chappelle to this woman pennant winner.

CLOSING UP THE DEAL.

Hendricks Becomes Part Owner and Will Be Manager of Indianapolis Club.

Negotiations were completed today under which James C. McGill, George A. Wahlgren and John C. Hendricks became owners of the Indianapolis club. Announcement that they would probably purchase it was made several weeks ago in The Sentinel.

Hendricks will manage the club and will live at Indianapolis and will begin at once the task of building up a good club. No mention is made in the negotiations about the Springfield club, and just what effect the deal will have on the Central league is not known.

Our Saturday Short Story

The Little Misery

(By ROBERT W. CHAMBERS.)

Illustrated by Dom Lavin, the Famous American Artist.

(Copyright, 1898, by R. W. Chambers.)

There was a river driver beyond the Northwest Carry who respected neither moose nor man. Because he was the best river driver on the West branch, they let him alone until he struck an Indian with a pike pole.

The Indian's head was damaged and while he waited for it to heal he selected his revenge. He hunted up the moose warden and told many lies. Deftly concealed among these lies, however, was a truth that infuriated the warden.

The river driver, whose name was Skeene, sneered when the moose warden glided into camp. But when he dug out a head and antlers behind a shanty Skeene picked up his rifle, looked obliquely at the moose warden, tied his blanket and fry-pan, hoisted his canoe onto his head and walked away to the southward, still sneering.

SKEENE THRASHED HALE BEFORE THE WHOLE CAMP, PACKED H IS KIT AND PADDLED AWAY.

I don't know what they said about it in Foxcroft, but Hale, who owned the timber and who thought he owned Skeene, hunted him up and sent him to work on the new cut-off, hoping the affair might blow over in time for Skeene to drive logs again. But Skeene turned lazy and lined the dead water with traps and set lines, and when Hale remonstrated Skeene laughed.

Then Hale threatened him and hinted about moose wardens and $500 fines, but Skeene thrashed Hale before the whole camp, packed his kit and canoe and paddled serenely away down the West Branch.

That really began the trouble, for Hale never forgave him. When Skeene started to guide for Henderson on the Upper Portage, Hale heard of it and ran him out.

Possibly, if they had let him alone, he might have turned out as tame as a Moose bird—he was only 23—but Hale remembered, and the Indian remembered, and one day a man came in to the Carry Camp with a 44 bullet in his wrist and an unserved warrant in his pocket. The man was a moose warden and the warrant was for Skeene.

When the news spread that Skeene had shot a warden, the guides from Portage to Lily Bay condemned him. Down at Greenville a sheriff and posse boarded the "Katahdin" and spent several weeks cruising about at public expense. Possibly they expected Skeene to come down to the shore and sit on the rocks; perhaps they fancied he might paddle across their bows in his sleep. Naturally he did neither.

Even after that, if they had given him a chance, he might have surrendered and taken his punishment.

A warden saw him building a lean-to on the island that divides the West Branch. The warden waited till dark, crawled in outside the fire and caught Skeene asleep. What Skeene did to the warden when he awoke the official cannot remember distinctly.

Three weeks after that Skeene walked into Kinco store, handling his rifle in a most alarming fashion. He suggested that they place certain provisions and ammunition in his canoe, which lay on the beach below. The three clerks complied. Twenty minutes later Skeene, in his canoe, was seen making for Moose river.

They notified the sheriff again. People fought shy of Moose river and the lake beyond, which is called Red lake. In vain the guides declared the region safe. Skeene let them alone. The Indian log driver, however, stayed away after Skeene had shot a hole in his canoe.

Skeene went to Canada for a year, worked at anything that came along, and sent money to Kinco store to pay for his pork and powder. That, of course, won him the guides again. So when homesickness drove him back to Red lake he expected to be let alone.

Hale, sluicing at the Northwest Carry, heard he had returned, and started for Red lake with the log-driving halfbreed and six men. Two days later they returned; Hale had a bullet in his leg above the knee and the halfbreed carried a similar gift in his forearm.

This incident bothered the sheriff cruelly. He went to Foxcroft, where they said unpleasant things to him; he went back to the Landing and they made fun of him.

The sheriff summoned his posse, boarded the steamer Red Deer and left Greenville, bound for Moose river. Half a dozen canoes were aboard. The posse carried Winchesters, although no game was in season.

Off the Gray Gull, an island, the little steamboat stopped, the canoes were dropped and the posse embarked.

At the mouth of the Moose river two more canoes were waiting; Hale sat in one, paddle glistening in the pale spring sunshine; in the other sat the Indian log driver, nursing the hammer of a rifle.

It was paddling for a mile to the first wing dam, and there the sheriff, who led, flung his stern paddle into the bottom of the canoe, flourished the setting pole and stood up. At the same moment a jet of flame leaped from the edge of the wing dam and a bullet passed through the sheriff's hat.

The amazed official fell overboard, sank, rose, grasped the edge of the canoe and swamped it, turning the bow paddler into the river. The swift current landed them on a shoal and they crawled up on a rock.

Nobody fired at the wing dam except Hale. He banged away as fast as he could pump the breech lever, and Billy Sebato, the Indian, took to the bushes and lay patiently waiting for a mark, purring with eagerness.

"Jim Skeene, you darned thief!" shouted Hale, "come out from them stones!"

"I ain't no more thief than you be, John Hale!" bawled Skeene. "I paid for them rations and cartridges and you know d—d well I did!"

The Indian Sebato fired twice.

"If that nigger Sebato don't quit shootin' I'll let loose on all o' ye!" called Skeene, shaking his rifle above the wing dam edge. "Git back to your dreen, Josh Hale, I tell you."

Hale started to push his canoe among the rocks where he could hold it and fire under cover. Skeene slid suddenly to the corner of the wing dam and fired three shots through the canoe, cutting a swale lengthwise at the water's edge. It settled in two feet of water.

"Now'll you let me be?" called Skeene. "I hain't done nothin' to you. If that there moose warden wants me let him come and get me. I tell ye I'll shoot to kill at the next man that fires!"

"You dasn't!" shouted the sheriff from behind his rock; "you ain't half a man, Jim Skeene!"

"I be," said Skeene calmly, "but I don't want no fuss. You keep off'n this river, and you keep off'n this here wing dam. And you stop sneakin' along the woods there, Billy Sebato! Git back there! Git back, or I'll shoot to kill. Tell that nigger Indian to git back! Tell him quick! I see him—I—"

Sebato's rifle cracked, and the shot was repeated by Hale, wading out on the shoal. Then a forked flame flashed from the wing dam, there came a crash and a crackle of dry twigs and the Indian pitched heavily over the bank into the swirling river.

Skeene's pale face appeared above the dam, but nobody spoke to him.

"You drove me to it," said Skeene. He spoke huskily.

"Come down off'n that wing dam," commanded Hale.

"Not for you, Josh Hale," replied Skeene, "nor for any man o' ye! An' I won't be took, neither. I'm goin' away to live quiet if they let me."

He crouched and watched them as they pushed their canoe out into the main channel. The sheriff and Hale advanced to the pool where Sebato lay. A slender fillet of blood hung in the water, floating like a red string.

"Bring them settin' poles," said the sheriff soberly.

They gave Skeene little peace for two months. Week after week a string of canoes passed the swift water under the canoes passed the swift water under the first and second wing dams, disembarking a file of riflemen. Week after week the distant flash of a paddle startled the deer at sunrise among the lily pads.

Once they saw Skeene for a moment standing in the stern of his canoe. The canoe lay at the mouth of the Little Misery, that dead stretch of water and deadfall, winding through the bog to the southward. They gave chase, trailing Skeene's canoe by the wake bubbles until they ran plump into quick water.

But the Little Misery is a strange stream draining a strange land, and there, in that maze of cuts and channels, of "logans" and quick water, of swamp, shoal, sedge and spectral ranks of dead trees, towering above swale and deadwood, they stood no chance.

And so they hunted Skeene at twilight, at dusk of morning, at high noon, from the Northeast Carry to the Northwest Carry, from the West Branch to Seboomook, from Portage to Lily Bay, and through a hundred miles of lake and stream, up and down, up and down. In August they gave up the chase.

That evening Skeene stood on a windfall in the depths of the Little Misery and watched three canoes file out of the discharge and glide into Moose river. The next morning he started a lean-to on the ridge back of the Little Misery, and the sharp crack and thwack of his ax rang out over Red lake.

At noon the echoes of ax strokes died away and the hut was thatched with balsam. By 3 o'clock a spike buck, a yearling, lay across a log on the ridge, and at 4 o'clock Skeene had satisfied his hunger.

In the days that followed Skeene learned to talk to himself. When he did this he forgot that he had killed Sebato; after a while he forgot it altogether.

When the August afternoons were ablaze with brazen sunlight and the lake glistened like a sheet of steel, Skeene sprawled on a log in the shade and watched the great blue herons. The great belted kingfishers knew him, the sheldrake, stringing along the creek at evening, turned their bright eyes to his.

The swift water of the Little Misery gave him a trout to every set line. On the Little Misery deer swam at evening, and he had meat for the price of a cartridge.

The white nights of August brought that vague unrest that all forest creatures feel. As the moon waned, the forest world stirred; its attitude was expectant; it waited.

An impatience, almost a sadness, fell upon Skeene. And with sadness came fear. He covered his lean-to and built a smoke hole through which blue haze rose in the calm morning air. But the steam hole of a beaver's house might be more easily located than the chimney of Skeene's hut.

PART II.

When September came a hush fell over the forest. Silent and more silent the woods grew as the new moon rose in the evening sky. At its first quarter the silence deepened, at its half the stillness was intense. Then one black night the full moon of September flashed in the sky, and a gigantic black shadow waded out into the lake and a roar shook the hills.

The first bull moose had bellowed and the rutting season had begun.

Instantly the forest, the lake, the shore, the stream were alive; the meat birds cried from every cedar; the deer barked from the sedge; a lynx howled and miauled in the second growth.

Now there is a season for all things. "Each after its kind," says the quaint Book.

Skeene sewed porcupine quills in a semi-circle over the instep of his moccasins, laced a string of scarlet trout flies across his slouch hat, and listened to the bull moose bellowing.

When the September moon waxed full Skeene's heart grew full, and the blood in his neck and cheeks ebbed and surged like moontides. So, on the second night, he took his rifle and dragged the canoe to the beach. But his heart failed him and he went back to his camp and rolled and grunted through a sleepless night.

On the third evening he started on foot, but he hesitated when the lamp in the Carry House broke out, a red beam in the night. He stood, wretched, wistful, undecided, fingering his rifle butt, and his heart beat to suffocation. Then, worn out with the fever in his veins, he slept upon where he lay.

On the fourth night of the full moon he went swiftly across the ridge, unarmed, and the miles of woodland and shore sped away like mist, so eagerly he ran. Far on the shore the red beam of the Carry lamp signalled him and his blood flamed the answer in his face.

And, as he strode up to the house, he saw a woman on the shore looking out into the night across the spectral lake. It was Lois, servant at South Carry. He had danced with her two years ago at Foxcroft Landing, he had sent her six otter pelts a month before he shot Sebato.

She was the girl he had come for.

Is it possible she expected him? The restlessness of September had drawn her to the lake and something had led him to her.

And so, together, they glided away on a trail of silver water to the strange country, drained by strange streams, stirred by strange winds.

At dawn the sky crimsoned the Little Misery. They slept. At sunrise a moose roared a salute to the coming day.

They awoke and kissed each other.

When the public spirited-citizens of Foxcroft offered $500 reward for te capture of Skeene, Placide L'Hommedieu scratched his greasy chin, licked his lips, and went out to buy cartridges. They found L'Hommedieu a week later peacefully floating down Moose river in his canoe, with a bullet in his brain.

When Skeene paddled away with Lois, there was trouble in Foxcroft. Hale left sluice, drain and chain and wired the sheriff at the Landing to meet him at Moosehead inn. The mayor went also, and next morning the reward was doubled for "James Skeene, murderer, dead or alive."

Hale had never forgiven the blow at the cut-off, but Hale had other reasons. They concerned Lois, servant at South Carry, for when she left with Jim Skeene she took Hale's betrothal ring with her.

After Skeene had set Placide L'Hommedieu afloat, with mud on his face and a bullet in his skull, Lois, waiting for him when he poled into the Little Misery, looked at his knife, then at his rifle, and finally into his somber eyes.

"I heard—only one shot. Was it a deer?"

He nodded, muttering that he had missed; but that night she caressed him, taking his curly head in her arms, and wept over him till daybreak crimsoned the world.

After that they were almost gay. He notched the logs and built a hut and rammed the moss into the cracks. Lois brought clay from the sweet water, and cut balsam until her little hands were stained to the palm. Twice he passed the three carrys to the C. P. R. and hung to a freight as far as Sainte Croix. He bought salt and pork and flour and cartridges with the proceeds of Hale's ring.

They knew that happines that is bred in haunting fear, that fierce, that intense love whose roots are imbedded in terror.

Snow came and Skeene lugged more deer hides into his hut.

The lake froze and Skeene dragged his canoe into the hut and daubed it with white lead, while Lois crept close to his side and strung snowshoes. At times she sang. He listened, lying beside the canoe.

Snow fell on the frozen lake; the Little Misery was mantled, the carrys choked. The deer yarded on the ridge, the moose on the slope above; the black bear buried his feeble nose in his stomach and dreamed.

As for Lois, she learned that men are brutes, and that Skeene was all the world to her. She learned that he went hungry that she might eat, that he shivered while she slept under skin and blanket.

Sometimes they played together, Skeene and this slender girl, like young foxes in the snow. She would often hide, too, in the hollow of a great swamp oak, and when he came home she would call: "Jim! Jim! Find me!"

And so it came about that Skeene, laughing up at Lois in the hollow swamp oak, glanced over his shoulder and saw six black dots clustered upon the frozen lake to the southward. He said nothing, but looked into the north. There were more dots there, more also on the ice in the west. For a moment he thought the east was still open; after a while he heard the scrape of a snowshoe very near. Lois also heard and her face was like death as she reached down and took the rifle from Skeene's hand.

When he had climbed up into the hollow tree beside her and looked out from the hole above the great branch, he saw Hale pearing at him from a dead-fall.

"Come down," said Hale.

Skeene clapped his rifle to his cheek and fired.

"Come down," repeated Hale from behind his dead-fall. Lois, trembling at Skeene's feet, shrank at the somber voice from the woods. Skeene bent and kissed her and caressed her, muttering things she could not understand, but she caught his hand in hers and tore off the fur mitten and pressed it to her hot lips, moaning and sobbing.

"Come down, for the last time, Jime Skeene," said Hale, slowly. Suddenly a rifle shot rang through the forest. The hand that Lois held tightened against her lips, quivered, relaxed. Something outside fell clinking and clattering to the ground at the foot of the tree. It was Skeene's rifle; and Skeene sank forward, hanging half out of the hole in the tree, head downward, like a dead squirrel.

And beside him the other wild thing sobbed and whimpered and moaned among the branches, while below the swift axes bit into the tree from which the dead game hung, head downward.

"Look in the hut for the woman!" bawled Hale.

The tree swayed and crackled and fell crashing into the snow.

"Where's that woman?" shouted Hale from the hut. "D—n her!"

But when he at last found her he changed his mind and let her stay with Skeene there in the snow.

THE END.

She's Going by Herself on 2,000 Mile Horseback Ride to See Country Right

Adventurous Miss Expects Lots of Adventure in Vacation Horseback Jaunt from Pacific Coast to Chicago—"The Pioneers Did It, So Why Not I," She Asks.

MISS BETTY THORPE AND THE HORSE SHE WILL RIDE IN 2,000-MILE VACATION JAUNT.

(By Bettie Thorpe.)

Spokane, Wash., Oct. 3.—Two thousand miles on horseback.

Yes, that's some trip for a girl, especially when a large part of this journey is through wild and unsettled sections of the country.

I expect to ride from Spokane to Chicago. I expect to reach Chicago in about two months.

I realize that this is some ride for a girl, but still it is not impossible. It has not been attempted, that I know of, since the days of the pioneers, and if they could do it, whno not I? All I need is courage and the determination to get there. I have both.

My reason for the trip? I have always wanted to do it because I think it a delightful and adventurous way of seeing the country—the real country away from hotels and railroads.

I expect to go through Glacier park and follow about the same general direction as the Great Northern railway. I intend to use the same horse for the entire trip. He is a tough little cayuse and thoroughly fit for the trip. Besides my camera, I shall carry a blanket, saddle bags for toilet articles and a gun. I expect to camp in the wilds, but when I get to parts of the country that are settled I shall stop in the towns or at ranch houses.

The trip will take me through Eastern Washington, Idaho, Montana, North Dakota, Minnesota, Wisconsin and Illinois. From Spokane through Idaho and Wesern Montana will be the real rough part of the trip, as there are many stretches of "bad lands" to cross.

I expect to encounter some interesting adventures and many hardships, but I believe I can make the trip without serious accident and have an enjoyable and unusual vacation.

Make the Wheels Turn Faster

DID you ever stop to consider the miles and miles you and your horses travel over the road every year? The hundreds of times you have to hitch up to go somewhere? And the time it all takes? To come right down to it, you really spend a large part of your life slowly riding over the roads—same old roads usually—going to town, to the mill, creamery, neighbor's, etc., etc.

It is a great waste of time in a year; it wears out your rigs, your harnesses, and your horses, and it takes your horses from waiting field work. When a hurry trip comes up, such as the getting of a repair part in harvest time, your horses can go only so fast. Compare this wonderful time-waster with an

Sturdy, dependable, reliable, willing, easy to manage and economical—all this the International is. It will do all this daily traveling, over any and all kinds of roads where horses can go—and go much faster and much farther. It will turn your trips into pleasure rides. It will add many profitable hours to your life.

The motor is simple and powerful. The solid tires eliminate tire troubles. One convenient lever controls the car. Brakes are strong and sure. Through sand, snow, mud, over hills, the International will travel all day without tiring.

Satisfy yourself about the International Motor Truck. Send a postal today, for catalogues and full information, to the

The liquor manufactured in Malaga, Spain, called ojen, and which has begun to meet with some favor in the United States under that name, is really a sweet anisette, colorless and containing 38 to 40 per cent. of alcohol. HOUSES AND ROOMS FOR RENT

MANY people have room they could just as well rent as to allow to remain empty. They are rooms which the family seldom or ever uses but are kept furnished at more or less expense and which produce no revenue. Why not rent them and get the money? Others have houses which sometimes remain vacant for months because they do not let it become generally known that the houses are for rent. At this season of year, when people are returning from vacations, and new people are coming to town, is an especially good time to make public the fact that these rooms or houses are for rent. How shall people be informed that these houses and rooms can be rented? It is very simple and very inexpensive. Use the classified advertising columns of The Sentinel. CALL UP 'PHONE 173.

THE MARKETS

GRAIN AND PROVISIONS.

Chicago Market.

Chicago, Oct. 4.—Prospect of a large increase in the visible supply made wheat prices today turn weak. The opening was ¼c to ½c off, and a further decline followed.

The close was steady, ⅝c to ⅝@¾c net under last night.

Hedging sales by cash houses because of demand being poor, gave a setback to corn. Prices started a shade to ⅞c lower and suffered an additional sag.

Longs unloaded oats on account of Canadian competition. The market, which opened ¼@½c to ⅝@⅞c down, dipped still lower.

The close was steady at ⅝@¾c to ⅞c net loss.

Provisions went under bearish control owing to a decline at the yards. First sales were unchanged to 7½c less expensive, but later held fairly steady.

THE DAY ON WALL STREET.

New York, Oct. 4.—An exceptionally large increase in gross earnings shown in Canadian Pacific's latest statement caused an upturn of nearly two points in that stock at the opening today. The movement in this issue was the only one of importance. The market was narrow and dull. Small fractional advances were made by most of the active stocks.

The market closed weak. Stocks sagged decidedly today after the market during the early trading had shown an advancing tendency. The upturn was neither broad nor vigorous and was interrupted frequently by small reactions until in the second hour the course of the market was shaped downward definitely. Announcement of reduction in prices of various steel products and assertions that further concessions might be made on account of the new tariff schedule were chiefly responsible for the turn in the market after its early manifestation of strength. Bonds were steady.

grocers of the city who are honored and respected as much as other business men. When I said that Mr. Buck never operated a bar in connection with his business that is what I meant. I did not say that Mr. Buck never sold liquor. When Mr. Buck first engaged in the grocery business he took out a government license. In 1897 he took out a state license and when in 1907 the so-called blind tiger law went into effect he permitted his license to expire and ceased the sale of liquor."

A Little About Hosey.

Although William H. Scheiman had not been announced as one of the speakers, he was called upon to talk, and during the course of his address he charged that William J. Hosey, democratic candidate for mayor, had cost the taxpayers $5,300 by failing to appoint a sinking fund commission, as he should have done under the laws of the state. Mr. Scheiman declared that Mr. Hosey came to him and asked that he not mention the sinking fund in his speeches a few years ago as he had not had time to appoint the sinking fund commission, but that he would do so at an early date. Mr. Scheiman says that he then refrained from taking up this subject during his campaign, and that Hosey never appointed this commission.

Owing to his absence from the city Charles W. Orr was unable to be present, and Judge Robert S. Taylor was another of the speakers who was unable to attend the meeting, but both sent communications of regret and expressed in writing, their favor of the non-partisan movement.

Judge Taylor stated that politics has no place in the affairs of any municipal government, and closed by saying that William J. Hosey is an unsuitable man for mayor and that he preferred Mr. Buck. Other speakers of the evening were A. E. Coverdale, J. W. Loney, James A. Lechler, Charles S. Bash, Howard L. Townsend, Perry A. Randall, Edward Yarnelle, S. F. Bowser, J. Frank Mungovan and John C. Werkman. B. Paul Mossman presided as chairman and introduced the speakers.

Voters Must Register.

Albert E. Thomas and E. F. Yarnelle both took up the matter of registration. Mr. Thomas declared that it is estimated that Fort Wayne has 19,000 voters, and that of this number only 8,000 have registered. He gave in detail an interpretation of the municipal registration problem, and explained that any person of foreign birth who has taken out first naturalization papers, has a right to register and qualify as a voter in the city election. When he declared that the poll books show that one-half of those already registered are for the non-partisan ticket deafening applause came from the audience, and was repeated when Mr. Thomas informed them that from all reports, two-thirds of the registration next Monday will be for non-partisanism, and will give a total large enough to elect this ticket.

Mr. Townsend Talks.

"Is it to the best interest of the city to have a non-partisan government?" asked Howard L. Townsend. You know that it is, and all fair minded voters agree that it is. We want a government in Fort Wayne so that a mayor will not have to appoint an inspector of the reservoir because he was a good "party worker."

Mr. Townsend declared that when he first cast his vote he did not think he was joining an "army." He said he did not think that if at any time he wanted to vote for somebody of different political faith that he would be classed as a "deserter," and then he referred to the outrageous attacks that have been made against everybody who has become associated with the non-partisan movement, all of whom were charged with "desertion."

"Think of this army we have deserted," said Mr. Townsend. "The army—General Hosey, Lieutenant LaTourette and Quartermaster Skelton. And now we hear that already there are great upheavals and camp disorders in this 'army.'"

A. S. Coverdale, the well known groceryman, who only this week resigned as the republican candidate for councilman in the Fifth ward, delivered a brief address, in which he stated that he had resigned from the republican ticket because he wanted to lend his services to the non-partisan movement.

The Labor Representatives.

Fort Wayne's laboring interests were represented at the meeting by James A. Lechler, president of the Federation of Labor; J. W. Loney and John C. Werkman.

Mr. Lechler declared that the laboring men have been pulled around by the nose long enough by machine politicians and that the men who toil have suffered more than anybody else by partisan rule, in that when they pay taxes they know how hard they have worked to dig up the funds with which to pay. Then when they do not receive any returns, they are the sufferers.

"There are no returns for the working men in party politics in city affairs, and this non-partisan movement is the best thing that has ever been started in Fort Wayne. I'd rather be right and alone than wrong and have the whole city with me. We workingmen know that we do not get the value received for the money paid out. Inefficiency in our public work is one reason that we should change the program and is alone a sufficient reason why we should have efficient men in office. Hosey is an incompetent, as demonstrated by his last administration."

Mr. Werkman denied that the committee of thirty, each member of which has been viciously attacked by the opposition, has personal interests at heart. He explained that he was a member of this committee, and he knew that it was not an organization of corporationists. He said that only recently he had been given an unfair deal by one of the very corporations accused of backing this movement.

"Gentlemen, I know that Charles H. Buck has not promised any man a job if he is elected. I also know that if this non-partisan ticket is elected it will not have a rope around its neck, and if we elect Mr. Buck we will never go back to one-man power in city affairs."

Is All a Failure.

S. F. Bowser declared that he endorsed all that had been said in favor of non-partisanism. He only spoke briefly and in closing said that if any business was operated in the same manner that politics operates a city, that business would fail. He pictured the voters of Fort Wayne as stockholders in Fort Wayne as a business, and the losers in this business because of politics.

Charles S. Bash spoke of the rapid growth of Fort Wayne as a city and declared that it is destined to become one of the biggest cities of the middle west. He declared that if party politics is to rule the people, the growth of the municipality will be checked, simply because efficiency and politics don't mix in city affairs.

JUDGE TAYLOR'S LETTER.

Says Democratic Candidate is Unsuitable Man for Mayor.

The communication from Judge Robert S. Taylor, to the non-partisan meeting Friday evening, is as follows:

"The meeting to be held tonight of supporters of the independent municipal ticket in Fort Wayne has my hearty sympathy. I would like very much to be present. But I cannot do that, and as the next best thing will briefly express my sentiments in a letter.

"The first reason why I favor the independent ticket is that I do not think that any city government ought ever to be run on political lines. Municipal government is a matter of business, not politics. That a man is a good democrat or a good republican is no reason at all for putting him in a city office. I stumped the country townships of Allen county for Abraham Lincoln in 1860, and have done as much work as the next man for that party since that time. But when it comes to municipal government there ought to be no politics in it.

"In the next place, I think that the democratic candidate for mayor is an unsuitable man for the position. We have tried him once and he was not satisfactory to me. I prefer Mr. Buck and those who are associated with him. Our great and growing city has a multitude of interests to be looked after. They require for their wise management the highest business capacity, incorruptible honesty and unremitting fidelity in the discharge of duty. That we shall stand the best chance of finding these high qualities in the men who lead the independent ticket is my firm conviction.

"This seems to me to be so plain a case of duty that if the voters of Fort Wayne return a majority for the partisan city ticket, I shall feel that we are really incompetent to conduct a municipal government.

"Very respectfully,
"R. S. TAYLOR."

HOSEY IN FOURTH WARD.

Seeks to Defend His Record While Mayor of Fort Wayne.

William J. Hosey, democratic candidate for mayor, Harry H. Hilgeman and Maurice C. Niezer addressed a meeting in the Fourth ward last evening. Mr. Hosey declared that if he had not been nominated there would have been no non-partisan movement, and then spent the remainder of his time in attempting to defend his record as mayor of Fort Wayne four years. After the regular program had been carried out, addresses were delivered by H. Waveland Kerr, Gustave Boerger and Jacob Hartman.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of testimonials.

TUBERCULOSIS IS EASY TO BATTLE

Professor Burrage, of Purdue Aldresses Meeting in This City.

ON "WHITE PLAGUE"

In the interests of the Fort Wayne Anti-Tuberculosis society, and its campaign against tuberculosis, Professor Severance Burrage, of Purdue university addressed a meeting Friday evening at the Fort Wayne Commercial club. Dr. J. H. Boyers, of Decatur, president of the state board of health, was to have been present, but in his absence a brief address was delivered by Secretary A. B. Turber. Among other speakers was Hon. Perry A. Randall, president of the local organization.

"Every city in the country should have some place where advanced cases of tuberculosis could be taken and cared for," said Professor Burrage.

"Tuberculosis is not an inheritant disease. This is a fact with which we have been trying to get the people in line for many years. A person living in the same house with another person who has tuberculosis may get the disease, not because it is inheritant and that the child had it in his blood from the parent, but because it is infectious. For this reason we are laying so much stress upon the habit of expectorating in public places. Another thing the people are not careful about is the proper methods of living. If we could impress upon those who are in the first stages of the disease that with proper eating, sleeping with fresh air, taking care lest they get tired out, and many other such simple precautions which, if they were only applied, would wipe out a great deal of this curse of our lands, much of our work would be accomplished. We have had our hopes raised many times by remedies which we have thought for a time would be a cure for the disease, but none of these have amounted to much so far as a cure is concerned. The only method of curing the disease in the first stage is by the proper method of living and care of oneself."

A VEGETABLE MADE $150,000 FOR A SINGER

A young European singer, who had suffered with indigestion, with the help of a famous French doctor (who told him of a vegetable having marvelous digestive properties) made a sauce containing this vegetable, which he used with his food and in the cooking. It was pronounced by the best cooks in Europe as a sauce unexcelled. The sauce was made by a company who paid the singer for the wonderful recipe. So great and immediate has been the success of Waw-Waw that it is to be found in all parts of the world. A few years ago the famous Waw-Waw was unknown in America, yet now it is to be found in the principal hotels, railroads and homes throughout this country. It adds zest and piquancy when used in the cooking, and added to soups, salads, hot and cold meats and fish it is unequalled, and at the same time you will see how easily you can digest anything. It is absolutely unlike all other sauces. Although resembling in taste a Worcestershire, yet the ingredients used are quite different. Waw-Waw (an obsolete South American word for vegetable) is purely vegetable and is guaranteed absolutely pure. Miss Rita Jolivet, the wonderful actress, writes: "The best sauce I have ever tasted and helps my digestion wonderfully." A 25-cent bottle from your local grocer will soon convince you how much more you will enjoy your food, and how easily you can digest anything and everything.
